Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed, head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter defiles the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, through its veins and arteries, suck up the poison that is sure to undermine and destroy, is indeed a blessing beyond all other human enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all afflicted. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never failing.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box CATARRHAL SOLVENT and one IMPROVED INHALER, all wrapped in one package, with treatise and directions, and sold by all druggists for $1.00.

A LITTLE SURPRISE.

Robert Lincoln Goes to the Court of St. James.

MURAT HALSTEAD TO GERMANY.

Allen Thorndyke Rice to Russia and Patrick Egan to Chili—Kind Words From Henry Watterson—Other Press Comments

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The president has made the following nominations:

John Hicks, of Wisconsin, to be United States minister to Peru.

George B. Loring, of Massachusetts, to be United States minister to Portugal.

Robert T. Lincoln, of Illinois, to be minister to Great Britain.

Murat Halstead, of Ohio, to be minister to Germany.

Allen Thorndyke Rice, of New York, to be minister to Russia.

P. Egan, of Nebraska, to be minister to Chili.

Thomas Ryan, of Kansas, to be minister to Mexico.

PRESIDENT HARRISON'S VISITORS.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The usual crowd congregated at the White House to-day and kept the president busy the entire morning. Among those admitted were Governor Beaver of Pennsylvania, Senator Farwell and friends, ex-Speaker Carlisle, Senator Allison, Representatives Burrows, Wallace, Harmer and Lafollette, Senator Dawes, Senator McMillan with Minister Palmer and General John C. New.

LINCOLN MAY NOT ACCEPT.

CHICAGO, March 27.—Hon. Robert T. Lincoln, when informed by a reporter this afternoon that he had been nominated by the president for minister to England, and asked if he would accept, said: "I shall consider the matter. I shall consider my business interests carefully, but what those interests are I do not care to make public."

THEIR PREVIOUS CAREERS.

Biographical Sketches of the Recently Appointed Foreign Ministers.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Robert Todd Lincoln, who was to-day nominated to be minister to England, is 45 years of age, and is the son of Abraham Lincoln. He graduated from Harvard College, served through Grant's Virginia campaign as captain, practiced law in Chicago and became secretary of war under President Garfield, remaining in that post under President Arthur. Since his retirement in 1885 he has been practicing law in Chicago.

Allen Thorndyke Rice, who has been nominated to be minister to Russia, was born in Massachusetts. He is a graduate of Oxford University, England, and since 1876 has been editor and proprietor of the North American Review. He also holds a controlling interest in a prominent Parisian newspaper, Le Matin, and has contributed largely to literature, while taking an active part in politics.

George Bailey Loring, of Massachusetts, is best known because of his connection with the department of agriculture, of which he was commissioner from 1881 to 1885. He is 7[illegible] years of age and is a Harvard graduate. Loring has been long in public life, beginning as surgeon of the marine hospital at Chelsea in 1843, and at other times being a postmaster, centennial commissioner and congressman.

Thomas Ryan, of Kansas, who has been named as minister to Mexico, is a native of New York, where he was born in 18[illegible]. He served during the war as a volunteer, was severely wounded and emerged as a captain in 1864. Since that time he has held various legal positions in Kansas and has been a representative in congress in six successive congresses.

James Churchill, the new surveyor at St. Louis, entered the war as a private in the Eleventh Illinois infantry and rose to the rank of colonel. He was severely wounded in an engagement and still carries several bullets in his body. For many years past he has been United States commissioner and clerk of the United States district court at St. Louis.

Murat Halstead, nominated for United States minister to Germany, was born in 1829 at Ross, Butler county, Ohio, and spent his boyhood on a farm. At the age of 18 he began writing for the newspapers, at first contributing the lighter class of romances. In 1851 he finished his schooling at the Farmer's College near Cincinnati and then did local news paper reporting for several Cincinnati papers. In 1853 he became manager of a department on the Cincinnati Commercial, and the following year he acquired a small interest in the paper. When the Commercial combined with the Gazette, the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette immediately became the recognized organ of the Ohio republicans. Mr. Halstead has a fine presence, genial manners and immense energy. He has always been a republican of a very pronounced type.

Patrick Egan, nominee for minister to Chili, has for many years been well known as a leader of the Irish people. He was born in Ballymahon, county Longford, Ireland, in 1841. When quite young, he went into the grain business. His business relations brought him into contact with the great masses, and he very early displayed a deep interest in the Irish cause. Becoming an active member of the Advanced National party, he took part in the revolutionary movement, which culminated in the attempted insurrection of 1867. He was one of the organizers and members of the council of the Home Rule League, formed in 1871. When Davitt in 1879 started his Land League movement, Egan, together with Joseph Biggar and William O'Sullivan, a member of parliament, became trustees of the league, and the work of the league in propagating its principles and aiding the evicted tenants in 1880 led to the prosecution of Parnell, Dillon, Sexton, Egan and others. The prosecution failing to secure conviction, the English government suspended the operations of the habeas corpus act, and also devised the scheme to seize the funds of the league. At the urgent request of the leaders of the movement, Egan went to France in order to protect the money entrusted to his care, and also to act as an intermediary between the branches of the league in America and Australia, and the national leaguers in Ireland and England. He returned to his native country, but on account of the fearful oppression and unfair treatment on the part of the government of Great Britain, he, in 1883, came to America and went to live in Nebraska, where he has since resided. He has been engaged in the grain trade while in this country, and has also taken an active part in politics as a member of the republican party. Egan is still a live worker in the Irish cause, and has confidence in its leaders in the old country.

John Hicks, who will go to Peru as minister of the United States, is a native of America, 42 years of age. He comes from Oshkosh, the home of Senator Sawyer, and is the proprietor and editor of the Oshkosh Northwestern. He has several times been elected president of the Wisconsin State Press Association, but has never before held a public office.

HARRISON'S FORESIGHT.

The "Courier-Journal's" Opinion of the President's Foreign Appointments.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 27.—Regarding President Harrison's diplomatic appointments, Mr. Watterson will say in to-morrow's Courier-Journal: "There is no denying that the administration is getting in some very astute political and party work in its appointments to office. With the exceptions of Wanamaker and Tanner, Mr. Harrison, whilst selecting active and orthodox republicans of the pronounced description, has shocked no popular or moral sensibility, but has rather impressed the country with the idea that he is a clear headed, well intentioned man, working for the best with great intelligence within his own party lines.

"The batch of diplomatic nominations sent to the senate yesterday completes the list of foreign places of importance to be filled, and although containing some surprises, it will on the whole give pretty general satisfaction. The nomination of Robert Lincoln as minister to England is at once a surprise and a ten strike. Taken in connection with the selection of Fred Grant for Vienna, it conveys an appeal to the young republicanism of the period which can not fail to have its effect. Both of these sons of illustrious sires are American gentlemen without reproach, and are fully qualified personally and officially to represent the country handsomely and adequately in the old world.

"In bringing the journalism of the party to the front and stimulating that important branch of the party service the president shows both wisdom and sagacity. No better minister to France could have been found in any walk of life than Whitelaw Reid, and no better consul general to London than John C. New. Now we have Murat Halstead to Germany and Thorndyke Rice to Russia. Mr. Rice is the editor of the North American Review, a man of many accomplishments and of a large fortune, whose knowledge of European life and affairs is very great and has not been obtained by the sacrifice of his Americanism.

"The selection of Mr. Halstead for Berlin is a particularly happy one. He is already well known to the Germans. In the Franco-German war he was the companion and guest of Von Moltke, met the great chancellor familiarly and often, and will be no stranger to the court to which he is accredited. He is personally both a handsome and brilliant man and will appear nowhere without distinction.

"The rest of the appointments are all in the same line, particularly that of Patrick Egan, which at this moment must be very gratifying to the Irish on both sides of the water. It costs us nothing to say these things.

"The contest between the democratic and republican parties for years hence will turn upon irreconcilable antagonisms of opinion. In the meantime it is of interest to all men to have the business of the country, particularly our representation abroad, in the hands of capable and good men, as it can never be the interest of any party to raise false personal issues, or deny politically that measure of justice which socially no one would think of withdrawing. All of the appointments we have named are individually excellent, and from a purely partisan standpoint made with admirable judgment and keen foresight."

With particular reference to the fight against the confirmation of the nomination of Mr. Halstead, Mr. Watterson says: "It is to be hoped the democrats of the senate, particularly democrats of the south, will join in no such movement. It could emanate only from petty personal spite or political malignity. Mr. Halstead is a fighter, and a bully fighter, who hits right out from the shoulder and never struck a man a lick below the belt in his life. As the representative of the country abroad he can be relied on to be as national as the most ardent nationalist could desire. The rejection of such a nomination would not only be a public scandal, but the vote to reject it ought to bring upon its author the contempt which malice and cowardice always inspire in the minds of honest men."

WHAT THE PAPERS SAY.

Lincoln's Appointment in the Light of Editorial Comment.

NEW YORK, March 27.—The Sun will say to-morrow: "The appointment of Robert Lincoln to be minister to England will be popular in this country, and we dare say it will give satisfaction to the mass of Englishmen. He is likely to prove a better minister than we have had in England since the late Charles Francis Adams."

The Press will say: "Modest, dignified, diplomatic, a man of high character and undoubtedly the possessor of a reserve force which has not yet been called out, Robert Lincoln, to say nothing of the distinguished name he bears, is eminently qualified in every respect to represent the government of the United States at the court of St. James."

The World will to-morrow say: "In giving to Robert Lincoln the mission to England the president has again, as in the appointment of Colonel Grant to Vienna, shown his respect for that principle of heredity which secured his own nomination. This is a new departure in the American government, and one that can be carried on far to commend itself to the favor of the people. Robert Lincoln is a man of fair abilities and good character. He is well educated and in the only public station which he has occupied, that of secretary of war, he made a favorable impression upon the country, but neither in point of ability nor public reputation is he a man who would be thought of for the highest and most important diplomatic position in the gift of the government except that he is the son of Abraham Lincoln."

The Times will say: "Mr. Lincoln, who is nominated for the most important place, is a good lawyer, a man of unblemished reputation, who showed judgment and candor in his conduct of the war department, and who is not at all a politician of the ordinary type. His appointment to the most honorable diplomatic position in the gift of the president is the most decided act of independence in which Mr. Harrison has indulged."

The Herald will say: "President Harrison is to be heartily congratulated on his choice of a citizen to represent the United States in Great Britain. A more fortunate and satisfactory selection on all accounts than Mr. Robert T. Lincoln could not have been made. Mr. Harrison in nominating him for that place has made a pleasure for every American who loves the memory of Abraham Lincoln."

The Star will say: "The appointments as a whole cannot be disappointing. Reminiscences seem to have had more weight in General Harrison's mind than personal ability or party services. Two of the most desirable places have been given to the sons of their fathers. Robert T. Lincoln was inoffensive as secretary of war and he will be as minister to England. As a representative of the American people, his abilities, in contrast with those of ex-Ministers Lowell and Phelps, will be pitiable."

THE CALIFORNIANS.

They Are Working at the Great National Puzzle of Making the Places Go Round.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The California delegation is still endeavoring to reach a final understanding about the distribution of the federal patronage in the state. This morning Representative Morrow and ex-Representative Felton called upon the president to make a final appeal for the appointment of Mizner as minister to Mexico, or to some position of prominence outside of the state. With Mizner disposed of in a foreign appointment it would be easy to fill the other offices. Phelps would be recommended for collector, Danforth for naval officer, Kilbourn for surveyor, Chamberlain for postmaster, Spaulding for sub-treasurer and Dimond for superintendent of the mint. But if Mizner has to be given one of the San Francisco offices the slate will be overturned, and somebody's nose will be put out of joint.

SPRINGER'S CHANCES IMPROVED.

CHICAGO, March 27.—The Journal's Washington special says: The nomination of Robert Lincoln as British minister shuts out Meredith, of Illinois, for public printer, so that place will probably go to Osborne, of California.

IN THE SENATE.

Yesterday's Proceedings—The Outlook for Adjournment.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The resolution heretofore offered by Mitchell authorizing the committee on mines and mining to continue its inquiry into the causes of the delay in considering the cases in the mineral division of the general land office, was taken up and referred to the committee on mines and mining.

The resolution heretofore offered by Butler declaring that the tenure of the president pro tempore does not expire at the meeting of congress after a recess, but was held at the pleasure of the senate, was taken up, and George made a constitutional argument in opposition to it. The resolution was referred to the senate, which went into session and at 3:30 adjourned.

AS TO ADJOURNMENT.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—It was expected that the senate would adjourn Friday next, but the death of Justice Matthews lost the senate two actual days of work, and the probability now is that adjournment will not take place before the middle of next week.

Nearly every senator, who expects to leave Washington at the end of the present extra session of the senate, has his grip packed and his wife, if she is in the city, has her Saratoga in the hall of the house, strapped ready for the expressman.

The adjournment of the extra session of the senate does not mean abandonment of the occupation of office seeking. Neither does it mean that all of the office-seekers will stay away from Washington. The work, however, will be conducted through the senators and representatives from their homes to a large extent. After the legislators and visiting patriots, who desire occupation in the federal government, have departed, the administration will begin to formulate its policy and there will be something more substantial for the readers of the daily papers to feed upon when they look into the Washington column than the eagerness of men who want to work for so much a year and draw their pay from the coffers of Uncle Sam.

SENATE CONFIRMATIONS.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Among those confirmed by the senate this afternoon were the following: Francis E. Warren, governor of Wyoming territory; Benjamin F. White, of Dillon, governor of Montana; Robert V. Belt, assistant commissioner of Indian affairs, and a number of postmasters.

NOT YET CONFIRMED.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The nominations of Lewis Wolfley to be governor of Arizona and John C. New, to be consul general to London, were reported favorably from the committee, but under individual objections they went over until the next executive session, when they will be confirmed.

CORPORAL TANNER SWORN IN.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Corporal James Tanner to-day took the prescribed oath of office and entered upon his duties as commissioner of pensions. His only appointment to-day was that of George B. Squires, of Brooklyn, New York, as his confidential secretary.

THE GRAND ARMY ENCAMPMENT.

Dissatisfaction at the Action of the Railroads in Maintaining High Rates.

CHICAGO, March 27.—Receiver McNulta of the Wabash had a conference with Chairman Abbott of the Western States Passenger Association to-day as to the arrangement for reduced fares to the national encampment of the Grand Army at Milwaukee next August. The roads running between this city and Milwaukee refuse to accept less than one fare and a third as their proportion of the rate, although the other lines are willing to make it one fare for the round trip.

General McNulta, who is himself a Grand Army man, is opposed to allowing the Milwaukee roads such high rates and is working up a feeling among his comrades. It is understood that Commander-in-Chief Warner will be in Chicago to-morrow to consult with the other Grand Army officials as to the advisability of changing the location of the encampment from Milwaukee to Chicago in order to secure the benefit of the low rates agreed to by the Chicago lines.

Disastrous Prairie Fires.

ST. CLOUD, Minn., March 27.—Considerable losses by prairie fires are reported from different parts of the country. High wind during the past few days carried the flames into the woods, and unless it can be checked soon heavy losses will result.

Purchase your tickets and reserve your sleeping car accommodation at No. 121 First street, corner Washington, office Northern Pacific Railroad.

OTHER CAPITAL NEWS.

Changes Made in a Number of Oregon Postoffices.

REPUBLICAN SENATORIAL CAUCUS.

Oklahoma Will Be Opened to Entry April 22—An Angry Officer Pulls the Nose of Governor Beaver, of Pennsylvania

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Oregon postmasters have been appointed as follows: At Forest Grove, Washington county, W. H. Crossley, vice John R. Griffin, removed; at Gervais, Marion county, John L. Taylor, vice Francis Mangold, removed; at Jefferson, Marion county, Charles H. Roland, vice Archibald B. Henderson, removed, and at Monmouth, Polk county, Mrs. Almira Davidson, vice George A. Walker, resigned.

A patent has been granted Nathan L. Baker, of Corvallis, for an amalgamator.

Senators Dolph and Mitchell called upon President Harrison yesterday, accompanied by State Senators J. I. Barin and J. H. D. Gray, John Hahn, W. J. Snodgrass and M. Baker, of Oregon, and General Hart, of Washington territory. They desired simply to pay their respects—only that and nothing more.

The secretary of the interior has appointed George L. Litchfield, of Salem, Or., special Indian agent for the Pacific coast. This position pays $2000 per annum, with traveling expenses and $3 per day for subsistence while traveling. There are but six of these agents in the country.

SENATORS IN CAUCUS.

The Republicans Discuss Matters of Importance in Secret Session.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The republican senators held a well attended caucus to-day prior to the meeting of the senate. The subject under consideration was with reference to the putting of all clerks on the annual lists, payment to be made out of the contingent fund. There was a general sentiment in favor of doing this, but the question of its legality being raised no conclusion was reached. It is inferred from what was said that the legal doubt will be sufficient to defeat the scheme, although that is not absolutely certain.

The other subject was, "Shall Senator Coke's speech on the Southern election outrages be answered?" The conclusion, while not formally expressed, was that there should be no further discussion of the subject at this session.

After the adjournment of the senate the caucus resumed its sitting and decided that an employment of clerks which would result in an overdraft upon the contingent fund was illegal. Therefore the scheme to make all of the committee clerks annual clerks will fail.

A resolution was adopted, however, to give Senator Vance, of North Carolina, a personal clerk. He has lost one eye, and the sight of the other is failing, and his republican colleagues deemed it only just that he should be spared the necessity of using his remaining eye to conduct his own official correspondence.

It was also finally decided not to continue the debate on the election outrages.

The general opinion, so far as expressed, was that the senate might reasonably expect to be able to adjourn Wednesday or Thursday of next week.

THE OKLAHOMA LANDS.

The President's Proclamation Opening the Territory to Homestead Entry.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The president's proclamation opening the Oklahoma lands to settlement on the 22d of April next, was issued to-day.

After setting forth the terms of the treaties ceding these lands by the Indians to the government, and the acts of congress relative to the opening of them to homestead entry, it describes these lands minutely by metes and bounds. It reserves two acres for government use, then formally declares that under these conditions these lands shall be open to homestead entry, at noon of April 22 next. All persons are warned that under the terms of the act of congress any person who shall occupy any of said lands before the time mentioned shall be forever debarred from making an entry thereon, and officers of the United States are required to strictly enforce this act.

Following is a description of the boundaries of the territory included in the proclamation: Beginning at the point where the degree of longitude 98 west from Greenwich, as surveyed in the years 1858 and 1871, intersects the Canadian river, thence north along and with said degree to the point where the same intersects the Cimarron river, thence up said river along the right bank thereof to the point where the same is intersected by the south line of what is known as the Cherokee lands lying west of the Arkansas river, or as the Cherokee outlet, said line being the north line of the lands ceded by the Muscogee or Creek nation of Indians to the United States by the treaty of June 14, 1866; thence east along said line to the point where the same intersects the west line of the lands set apart as a reservation for the Pawnee Indians by an act of congress approved April 10, 1876, being the range line between ranges 4 and 5 east of the Indian meridian; thence south on said line to the point where the same intersects the middle of the main channel of the Cimarron river; thence up said river along the middle of the higher channel thereof to the point where the same intersects the range line between range 1 east and range 1 west (being the Indian meridian), which line forms the western boundary of the reservations set apart respectively for the Iowa and Kickapoo Indians by executive orders, dated August 15, 1883; thence south along said range line or meridian, to the point where the same intersects the right bank of the north fork of the Canadian river; thence up said river along the right bank thereof to the point where the same is intersected by the west line of the reservation occupied by the Citizen band of Pottawattomies and Shawnee Indians, set apart under the provisions of the treaty of February 27, 1867, between the United States and the Pottawattomie tribe of Indians, and referred to in the act of congress approved May 23, 1872; thence south along said west line of aforesaid reservation to the point where the same intersects the middle of the main channel of the Canadian river; thence up said river along the middle of the main channel thereof to a point opposite to the place of beginning, and thence north to the place of beginning.

LAND OFFICES FOR OKLAHOMA.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The commissioner of the general land office has issued an order establishing two offices in Oklahoma territory. The land office for the western district will be located at King Fisher's Stage station, and for the eastern district at Guthrie.

A HUMILIATING AFFRONT.

Ex-Governor Beaver's Nose Pulled by a Retired Army Officer.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The trouble between George A. Armes, a retired officer of the army living in this city, and those having charge of Harrison's inaugural parade, culminated this afternoon in a scene in the rotunda of the Riggs house.

About half past four o'clock Major Armes walked into the hotel, and after a few words pulled the nose of Governor Beaver, of Pennsylvania. The governor was not hurt, but was angry, and steadying himself against the hotel counter seized his crutch, which serves him in place of the leg he left behind during the war, and aimed an ugly blow at his enemy. Armes dodged the blow, and it struck one of the pillars of the hotel rotunda. The second blow also missed its mark, and the hotel policeman rushed up, attracted by the noise, and placed Armes under arrest.

Armes was released by the direction of the hotel management, however, and escorted out of doors. "I pulled his nose anyway," he said.

PACIFIC COAST WHEAT.

Interesting Statistics From the Department of Agriculture.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—According to the report of the statistician of the agricultural department there were produced in this country during 1888 [illegible] bushels of wheat, of which California raised [illegible] bushels, Oregon 14,485,000 bushels, Nevada 260,000 bushels, Arizona 570,000 bushels and Idaho [illegible],000 bushels.

The home consumption of the Pacific coast states and territories was as follows: California, [illegible] bushels, Oregon [illegible],051,800 bushels, Nevada 160,000 bushels, Arizona 9[illegible],500 bushels, and Idaho, 88,[illegible]00 bushels. California shipped 21,-[illegible] bushels, Oregon shipped 9,456,[illegible]00 bushels, Nevada shipped 40,000 bushels, Arizona shipped [illegible] bushels and Idaho shipped 463,240.

Entire Cessation of Work at Panama.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Secretary Blaine has received a report from the consul of the United States at Colon, stating that work along the Panama canal has entirely ceased, and that the West India negroes are returning to their homes. Up to March 16 fully 5000 of the latter had already left. The consul reports great depression in the business of the Panama Railroad Company, and they are suffering from the crisis, owing to the loss of local traffic.

Two unsuccessful attempts have been made to burn Colon.

Under Four Indictments.

PITTSBURG, March 27.—The grand jury this afternoon returned true bills against ex-Cashier Voight, of the defunct South Side Farmers and Mechanics' bank, on four indictments. The first indictment charges Voight with making false entries in the books, the second with mutilating the books, the third with embezzlement, being employed as an official, and the fourth with perjury.

The Oregonian.

PORTLAND THURSDAY MARCH 28

JOHN BRIGHT

The life of John Bright was so completely despaired of many weeks since that THE OREGONIAN published a full account of his glorious career which beginning with his eloquent and triumphant agitation for the repeal of the corn laws and the acceptance of free trade by Peel ended substantially with his support of Gladstone's famous anti Turkish campaign against Beaconsfield in 1876. Bright nominally supported Gladstone's ministry from 1880 to 1885 but sickness had so reduced his strength and embittered his spirit that he was no longer the orator who almost alone had pleaded the cause of American union from 1861 to 1865 and subsequently labored from 1868 to 1874 in support of Gladstone's glorious reform administration which disestablished the Irish church

After 1876, in consequence of broken health, Bright was a phantom of his former self and when Gladstone declared for Parnell and home rule in 1886 Bright who had been his life long friend deserted the liberal colors under which he had won all his best fame and in his fretful and feeble old age joined the tory party of Salisbury Balfour Hartington and Chamberlain The last years of Mr Bright are like the last years of Webster years of weakness rather than wisdom, years of shame compared with the glory of his manly prime America however never can forget that this great Englishman was our friend in sunshine and in storm during our civil war, at a time when even so clear and powerful an intellect as that of Cobden at first leaned for a time toward the South and Gladstone was an open mouthed admirer of Jeff Davis as "a man who had founded an empire" But Bright according to the testimony of the recently published letters of Motley, was from first to last the inflexible, enthusiastic indomitable unterrified advocate of the cause of the Union Cobden once attacked something which Motley had published in the London newspapers in favor of the Northern cause and Bright thereupon wrote Motley as follows

> I thought that my lamented friend, Mr Cobden was rather severe upon you, and I told him afterward that I thought his argument was hardly fair He was so much shocked at the war that he seemed ready for any sacrifice to put an end to it, and he had no confidence in the statesmen whom the republican party had raised to office But he always insisted upon this, that an attempt to build up a new state on the foundation of human bondage could not succeed in our age of the world He watched the course of the war with intense interest, and, strange to say, his eyes closed in death on the very day on which Richmond fell.

A man of Quaker blood and breeding, Bright hated war, and denounced every war in which England has been engaged in this century but in a speech before the peace society of London a few years ago he made an exception in favor of our war as follows

> Give me a particular war, and the only war it would be difficult to answer about would be the slavery war of America. That war appears to have been a great punishment of that nation for a century of crime in maintaining the horrors of slavery within their borders. But in that case they were attacked by a rebellious conspiracy and their forts were attacked They were first attacked, they resisted, and they knew very soon what they were fighting for, and then accomplished what they fought for The whole thing is one of those great transactions which I should be unwilling to take part in or severely to judge but, at any rate, it is not like the struggles in which we have engaged, at all ends of the earth almost.

In illustration of Bright's power of statement it would be easy to make many splendid quotations from his speeches When he pronounced the eulogy of his dead friend Cobden, he said of the great fight for the repeal of the corn laws in 1845 46 "Famine itself, against which we had warred joined us"—referring to the potato rot of 1845 in Ireland which, producing a famine forced Peel's hand and persuaded him to repeal the corn laws and declare for free trade

It is a curious fact that Bright, who came of sturdy abstemious stock, and had a fine strong athletic Saxon physique broke down in health shortly after his great oratorical efforts against the Crimean war of 1854 56 and for several years was in retirement and broke down a second time about eighteen years ago, since when he has been a chronic invalid The explanation of his premature decay, for he is not as old as Gladstone by two years, must lie in his indifference to the necessity of exercise A few years ago Bright, in conversation, declared that his besetting sin was his natural mental and physical sluggishness He declared that nothing but his moral sense of duty and responsibility have kept him from lying abed late and reading what amused him He hated work of the drudging kind, he used no wine or spirits or tobacco his diet was simple, he had no social vices of any sort but he hated physical exertion, and probably, having a large, sturdy physique, he did not take exercise enough to digest his food Gladstone, with a far less imposing physique has from youth up been instinct with nervous energy, he has exercised daily eaten a generous diet of beef and claret, and to-day he is 80 years of age is hale and hearty while abstemious Bright is dead It only shows that something besides abstinence is necessary to longevity Vigorous exercise and cheerful companionship have as much to do with length of days and health as total abstinence If Bright had been able to overcome his constitutional indolence and taken the regular physical exercise practiced by Gladstone he would have lived probably as long and happily as his old time illustrious friend and compatriot.

THE JESUITS IN CANADA

Our dispatches yesterday announced a sharp debate in the Canadian house of commons over a resolution addressed to the governor general urging him to disallow the so-called Jesuit act passed by the legislature of Quebec granting $400 000 in final settlement of all claims of the Jesuits in Canada to restitution or indemnity for their estates from the government The history of this ancient claim is so interesting that it is worth reciting in full

When Canada was ceded to Great Britain after 1760 the Jesuits who had a splendid college in the city of Quebec and to whom the kings of France had granted a vast region of forest lands had already been suppressed in France by the civil power and their society was proscribed as illegal throughout the British empire The British government however, with a rare and admirable wisdom for those times, expressed its appreciation of the great services rendered to Canadian civilization by the Jesuits by leaving them in possession of their houses and revenues only on the condition, however that they should not recruit their number and that when the last member of the order then living in the colony should have died all their houses and property should become the property of the government. The liberality of the British government went so far that when Pope Clement XIV issued his decree suppressing the Jesuit order, the British government forbade its publication in Canada just as the decree of Louis XV of France against the Jesuits had been ignored in 1759 This was wisdom on the part of the British government that sought in this way to attach their French colonists to British rule so the Jesuits were undisturbed in Canada

This is a very interesting fact and highly creditable to the statesmanship of the British government of that day The curious thing is that a government, wise enough to see that religious and political proscription and persecution of their Roman Catholic colonists would be disastrous in Canada, was not wise enough to deal with their Roman Catholic subjects in Ireland on equally generous terms Had Great Britain beginning with 1760 treated her French colonists in Canada as she treated her Roman Catholic subjects in Ireland, she would have utterly alienated Canada and made her so ripe for rebellion that on the outbreak of the American revolution Canada, under the lead of an offended and insulted priesthood would have risen in insurrection and would surely have fallen into the hands of the American colonies Arnold and Montgomery would have had an easy march to Montreal and Quebec for all the French colonists would have welcomed them with both hands But the liberal policy of the British government towards the Jesuits attached the priesthood and the people to the British flag so that when the American revolt broke out in 1775 only fifteen years after the conquest of Canada the Canadians were all so inflexibly loyal to the crown that they joined its armies and fought bravely under Burgoyne for their new master, King George

The statesmanship of Chatham, which, by this admirable policy of toleration, captured the Jesuit priests and through them all the French colonists in Canada ought to have been applied to Ireland where four fifths of the people are Catholics, and had it been Ireland would be as fervently loyal as Canada But George the Third hated and distrusted Ireland, and neither the elder nor the younger Pitt could ever persuade him to favor Catholic emancipation

Under the papal decree against the Jesuits the holy see had transferred to the existing bishop of Quebec and his successor the right to the property of the order leaving it to the priesthood to make the best terms they could with the local government regarding the Jesuit estates and their revenues Bishop Hubert, when the last Jesuit priest had expired, conferred holy orders on Brother Cazot the sole surviving member of the Quebec Jesuit community, and there was no interference on the part of the colonial authorities, because they did not wish to offend the Roman Catholic priesthood and their flock, the French Canadians Father Cazot, until his death in 1800, disposed of all the revenues of these forfeited estates in works of charity and public utility Then the government established a special administration for "the Jesuits' estates, devoting their revenue to educational purposes This situation remained unchanged until 1839 when the Jesuits returned to Canada They built a college in Montreal, which was chartered afterward by the legislature, and ultimately the Jesuits were admitted to all the privileges of citizenship Then the Jesuits began to press their claim for the restoration of their estates There really does not seem to have been any very strong foundation in law or equity for the pressure of this claim, since the Jesuits' work in the field of missionary labor and in that of education had been taken up and continued by the Canadian clergy, who for more than a century had well done the work the Jesuits could not do, because of their suppression by the ecclesiastical power of the pope working hand in hand with the civil power of Europe In equity therefore the full claim of the Jesuits was resisted The local government of the province of Quebec, in which the Jesuit estates were situated, proposed to grant as an indemnity in lieu of all claims the sum of $400 000 and the present pope, Leo XIII, was named as the arbitrator for a just and equitable distribution of this sum in final settlement of claims to the Jesuit estates in Canada The pope has pronounced his decision under which the Jesuits get $100 000 together with valuable landed property at Laprairie The seminary of Quebec, which had taken up the apostleship of secular education, on the legal extinction of the Jesuits in 1800 gets $140,000, $100 000 of which go to Laval University created and maintained by the seminary at its sole expense, and $40 000 to the succursal of Laval University, established in Montreal The Canadian missions are not forgotten, $20 000 being granted to the missions of Labrador and the northern shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence The eight dioceses of the province of Quebec get, each, $10,000

This statement of facts concerning this "Jesuit legislation" that is the apple of discord for the moment in the Canadian parliament, is, we believe correct, as it is drawn from an intelligent Roman Catholic account of the whole controversy, furnished to the New York Sun by its European correspondent, Bernard O'Reilly.

THE ABANDONMENT OF INFANTS.

There is a bill before the legislature of Minnesota, the object of which is to prevent, so far as dread of penalty will do this the abandonment of infants and to protect helpless waifs from what the St. Paul Globe terms "the horrors of the baby farm" That journal cites the force that the law "covers with its broad mantle the adult and shadows the steps of the minor but hitherto its folds have given scant shelter to the helpless babe"

The bill is drawn with special reference to the care of children under 3 years of age The penalty proposed for the willful abandonment of an infant varies from a fine of $1000 to $3000, or imprisonment in the county jail from one to two years, or both at the discretion of the court, and according to the more or less flagrant features of the offense

There is no doubt about the justice of such a law or the humanity that inspired it Though it proposes to deal with the matter of the abandonment of infants as a misdemeanor merely, such abandonment has in it in reality the elements of a cold blooded and heartless crime, far exceeding in magnitude many for which much more severe punishment is devised The single statement of such a case, followed by proof of the charge, will probably in most instances be sufficient to ecure conviction and insure speedy penalty There is a doubt, of course, as to the efficacy of law in such a case, as the cruel and heartless act of abandonment is usually done in a corner, the only witness the dumb and helpless little victim of parental cruelty, and selfishness and crime But it will speak well for the representatives of the people of a great state if they make an honest effort to bring irresponsible parents and heartless custodians of infants, who deliberately abandon them, to punishment The law is one that public sentiment will fully endorse, since with the exception of the comparative few who seek to throw the burden of their shame or the consequences of their ill considered acts upon others everyone will applaud the justice of the intent that seeks to awaken pity for the most helpless of all living creatures and to compass for them kindness, shelter and the care of those directly responsible for their untoward existence The evil at which the proposed law aims is a common and growing one, and while there is no hope of its eradication it may be possible to put a check upon it through the agency of penalty the dread of which is the coward's nightmare

A dispatch from Olympia tells of the arrest of a man who does Yamhill county in this state the discredit of claiming it as his home on the charge of committing a criminal assault upon a little girl who was out gathering wild flowers. To the infinite discredit of the justice before whom he was examined on the vile charge the inhuman monster was released, although he did not deny a portion at least of the child's story There is occasionally a case wherein the use of the shotgun supplementary to the release of a criminal without punishment, would be silently if not audibly applauded in a community

GRAY'S HARBOR.

A Deep Sea Terminus for Transcontinental Roads

Montesano the Coming City of This Section—All the Elements of Wealth and Prosperity Are There in Profusion

The only money ever appropriated by the government for the improvement of Gray's harbor was $[illegible] which was expended last summer in removing stumps and snags out of the Chehalis river, fully thirty miles above the head of navigation That it is one of the safest and best harbors on the coast is proven by the infrequency of wrecks or accidents in it or near it, notwithstanding the fact that absolutely nothing has been done towards improving it Up to the present there has not even been a lighthouse at its entrance although at the last session of congress an appropriation for that purpose was made, and it is expected that one will be erected before fall On the outer bar there are twenty two feet of water at low tide with a tide of from ten to twelve feet There are but few ocean going vessels which can not cross it with perfect safety There are but two or three shoal places which the expenditure of but a trifling sum will remove, to prevent any vessel from crossing the outer bar and ascending to Montesano As it is all the passenger steamers from Portland, San Francisco and other points make Montesano their terminus and it is a common thing for vessels to load with 800 000 feet of lumber at her wharves Her importance as a mercantile and distributing point can be realized when it is said that 200 tons of merchandise are unloaded at her wharves every month

The extremely favorable location of Gray's harbor, it being more than three hundred miles nearer San Francisco or any other southern market than any port on Puget sound, cannot but have the effect of making it the terminus of several transcontinental lines of railroad, and the city which secures these roads will unquestionably become a great commercial center As Montesano is situated at the head of navigation, yet within convenient reach of the ocean, and besides combines all the other advantages, it is but fair to suppose that she will be the city

No better illustration of the rapid growth of northwestern cities could be found probably than Montesano In 1884, less than one hundred people lived within the incorporation Along both sides of what is now busy Main street extended a "worm rail fence" The town for more than a year after that had but three mails a week, the mail for the whole route, from Olympia, being carried in a saddle bag on horseback Although now enjoying a daily mail the average weight of the matter received will run from six hundred to one thousand pounds per day, certainly a very creditable amount for a city of 1500 inhabitants, and speaking very highly for their intelligence. The school population has grown so rapidly that although the large and handsome school building was not nearly filled at the time of its erection two years ago, it is now entirely inadequate to provide room for all the pupils who apply for it, consequently its duplicate will be built in the western part of town this summer, and in addition a handsome central high school building is talked of

For morality there is probably not a city nor a county in the United States which will excel Montesano or Chehalis county The vote cast in Chehalis county at the presidential election last fall exceeded 1400, indicating a population of upwards of 7000, yet never in her history has a murder been committed, while the dockets at her criminal courts are always very light

If you were to ask any one of Montesano's 1500 inhabitants which was the most promising point in Washington territory, the answer would undoubtedly be Montesano, and after spending two or three days in their enterprising city and listening to the many reasons advanced by them for their belief, the unprejudiced visitor cannot but admit that a large part of the confidence felt by them is justified

Situated at the head of navigation of the Chehalis river, thirty miles from the ocean Montesano certainly combines in a large degree all the elements which usually go toward making a large city For variety and extent of resources there is probably no town in Western Washington which surpasses her

The town is beautifully situated at the narrowest part of the Chehalis valley, close to where the Wynooche joins the Chehalis. Additions are already platted which reach nearly to the Wynooche, and at the present rate of growth it will be a question of but a short time before a water frontage on both streams is secured. The gradual slope of the land on which it is laid out insures perfect drainage, while that, combined with the salt breezes which sweep up from the ocean, renders it peculiarly healthful, malaria being unknown.

Among the improvements contemplated which will soon be secured is a complete system of waterworks. Sylvia creek, a stream of pure spring water rising in the Olympic mountains and running in a southerly direction joins the Wynooche a short distance from town At a distance of about a mile and a half an almost perpendicular fall of upwards of seventy feet is sustained. Above these falls is a natural lake covering about five acres. The intention is to lay a five-inch main from the lake to the city, which is to be piped thoroughly. The altitude of the lake is so great that it is estimated that enough pressure will be obtained to force water over the highest building ever likely to be erected. It is proposed to utilize the waterpower of the falls to operate an electric light plant for the city In addition to which it is estimated that enough power can be obtained to run all the machinery ever likely to be used in a manufacturing city of 60,000 inhabitants

One of the questions which is of vital importance to the intending settler is that pertaining to the religious and educational facilities. In both these respects Montesano cannot be excelled by any other town in the territory Three church societies, Presbyterian, Methodist and Christian are regularly organized, with resident pastors and hold services each week. In addition to the graded public school, which is a handsome and commodious building, and is conducted by an efficient corps of teachers, the Chehalis Valley academy, an institution operated under the auspices of the Presbyterian church, is in operation and has a large attendance.

The general business interests of the city are represented by stores of every description, all having a prosperous trade There are four hotels in town, all of them commodious buildings and conducted in an excellent manner, but as the population of the city increases and the number of tourists and others arriving becomes greater, the need of another hotel is becoming felt and the question of the erection of a handsome brick building to be used for that purpose is being discussed with the probability that it will be completed this season.

In the manufacturing line there are now in the city two saw mills with a daily capacity of 30,000 feet, one furniture factory one harness and saddle factory and one wagon factory The machinery to operate an extensive brick yard is now on the ground and will be put in position at once so as to supply the rapidly increasing demand for that article.

As the present rapid growth of Montesano is not due to any particular advertisement of its advantages, nothing of the kind having been done, but is composed of people who, attracted by its apparently favorable location, have come to investigate, and, being satisfied, have settled down, it may not be out of place to consider here of what those advantages consist

In the first place Chehalis county of which Montesano is the county seat, possesses an advantage over most other counties of the Northwest in the matter of climate for this reason It is bounded on the west by the Pacific ocean, on the south by a high range of hills separating it from Pacific county, on the east by the Cascade range of mountains and on the north by the Black hills. Thus a natural basin is formed into which the warm Japan current, by means of Gray's harbor, after skirting the county on the west, penetrates almost to the center, causing a more equable temperature than is to be had in almost any other section

Look at a map of Chehalis county and you will see that reaching out in different directions with Montesano as a common center, are the valleys of the Chehalis, Satsop and Wynooche rivers containing immense bodies of the finest agricultural lands west of the mountains These valleys which are being rapidly settled and which will in time support a dense population, are now and always will be directly tributary to Montesano, for this reason between them the hills are high and the country broken consequently road building is difficult and the roads that might be built will never be good enough to sustain other towns near here. All the best roads and the ones which will be always most traveled naturally and unavoidably gravitate to Montesano

The Wynooche valley, extending in a northerly direction contains some of the finest agricultural lands on the coast. The valley varies in width from one-half to one and one-half miles, and reaches as far north as the Olympic mountains. As an illustration of the fertility of the soil On the James Wilson place, five miles northwest of Montesano ten acres were cleared of the brush and timber, which was burned Without being plowed the seed was sown and dragged in with brush, the result being the astonishing yield of sixty bushels of wheat per acre In this valley the settlement is comparatively thin up to twenty miles from Montesano, where it ceases entirely, the land beyond that limit being unsurveyed

Next east of the Wynooche is the Satsop which though not so extensive, contains soil which is remarkably rich For ten miles from Montesano it is fairly well settled, the land being mostly held in large bodies. The owners, however, evince a disposition to cut up their land into smaller tracts and sell at very reasonable prices. The writer of this was offered a very desirable quarter section, mostly bottom land, in the neighborhood of Elma, ten miles from Montesano, at the very reasonable price of $1000

It is the Chehalis valley however, of which the people of Montesano are especially proud. Rivaling in extent and even surpassing in fertility the famous Willamette, the Chehalis is without a peer in Washington. Not only is the soil remarkably fertile, but constant cropping seems to show no noticeable effect in decreasing the amount of produce raised. From a field of thirty five acres which had been in meadow steadily without having been once plowed or reseeded, Mr C N Byles, of Montesano last season cut an average of three tons of hay to the acre. In the Chehalis as in the Satsop valley, but little government land is left, but as the land is mostly held in large tracts and the owners are pretty generally cutting them up and offering them for sale in small sections, no trouble is found in securing farms on very reasonable terms.

In addition to the above valleys, a large part of the valley of North river, an extensive stream which runs within six miles of Montesano on its way to Shoalwater bay, is tributary to Montesano.

This valley is as yet comparatively thinly settled but is fast improving and settling up. During the past year a number of school houses were erected and roads built, the cost of one to Montesano being liberally contributed to by the citizens of that place.

A use to which it is expected to put the waters of the Wynooche, Satsop and Chehalis soon in a more extensive way than has ever been done heretofore is to float the timber growing within convenient hauling distance of them to the mills at Montesano Throughout Chehalis county are extensive tracts of the finest timber lands to be found in the Northwest a large percentage of them being tributary to Montesano. Of these timbered tracts the average cut of the better claims is from six to ten million feet to the quarter section while as high as from 12,000 000 to 14 000 000 feet have been cut, figures which seem marvelous it is true but which are so common in this section as to excite no comment While the best of the timber claims have been taken some good ones may still be had within convenient distance from water or the course of one of the several railroads soon to be constructed Throughout the county are still several immense tracts of the finest tillable timber and agricultural lands as yet unsurveyed One of the causes which has retarded the growth of Montesano and Chehalis county, has been their inaccessibility, the only means of reaching them being by stage from Olympia and Centralia and by steamer from Portland and San Francisco. This however will not long be the case The growth in population and business have rendered the former steamship service inadequate and arrangements for more frequent trips with larger steamers are now being consummated The great extent of the resources and the promising future of this section have attracted the attention of the railroad builders and the indications are that Montesano will soon be one of the great [illegible] west of the mountains Already work is being pushed on three roads which will reach here and [illegible] confidently expected before the end of the [illegible]

The Puget Sound and Gray's Harbor railroad is already constructed a part of the distance from Kamilche which is its terminus on the Sound In return for making Montesano its terminus this road asked to be given sixty acres of water front, 400 feet square within the city limits, for depot purposes and the right of way Their request was promptly granted As the water front is to be used as a mill site and the road penetrates some of the finest timber lands on the coast it is evidently the intention of the company to establish an extensive mill here

The proposition of the Puget Sound and Chehalis road to make Montesano the terminus of a road which will be built from Olympia south in return for twenty acres river front, the right of way depot facilities within the city limits and $25,000 invested in the stock of the company, is now being considered and will doubtless be accepted

The line of the Port Townsend southern it is believed, will run down the Satsop valley within six miles of Montesano, the understanding being that a branch will be extended to that place

Work is being rapidly pushed on the line of the Tacoma Olympia and Gray's Harbor railroad in the vicinity of Centralia If as is supposed, this is the western end of the transcontinental line which will make its terminus on Gray's harbor, the future of Montesano will certainly be bright

At present the only way to reach Montesano is by steamer from Portland once a week and by stage each day from Centralia and Olympia Of these routes the quickest and most satisfactory is the Williams stage line from Olympia. Leaving Olympia at 8 o'clock in the morning by steamer, after a fifteen mile ride up an arm of the Sound, along which the scenery is delightful, connections are made at Kamilchie, with a train on the Puget Sound and Gray's Harbor railway which carries the passengers to Summit, its present terminus. From Summit to Montesano, twenty miles, the conveyances used are four horse thoroughbrace stages, the ride in which proves very enjoyable.

BROWNSVILLE NOTES

BROWNSVILLE Or, March 26

J M Moyer is in Portland, spending a few days

J P. Venner, of Portland, is visiting relatives here.

P M Jack is confined to his home by a severe attack of rheumatism.

R. N Thompson, wife and infant son arrived from San Francisco last Friday

Ped. Coshow has gone on a business trip to Butte City Mont., for the B W M Co

Many gardens are planted, and in some the peas are four inches high and growing finely

Thomas Kay and family have departed for the East on a visit, to be gone several weeks.

D M Walter took W Blanchard back to the McKenzie mines last week with more supplies

Steven Goble, who lost part of his fingers and thumb a few weeks ago, is having a serious time, but is improving

C. E. Stanard has resigned the position of postmaster so long held by him, and George A. Dyson has been appointed in his stead

R A Sanders's horse ran away on Sunday last, throwing him off just before crossing the bridge, and came near colliding with Dr Starr's buggy No serious damage was done.

Last Friday Mrs. Mary Zelner and her two children arrived home from San Francisco Mr Z will be home in two weeks. He is getting along nicely, but his neck is not quite healed yet

The affairs of the narrow gauge railway are soon to be wound up, and we hope to see this road fall into some good company's hands, who will change it to a standard gauge and put it in first class condition.

Dr Tucker and family are here from McMinnville visiting Rev Mr Sperry The doctor has been sick in bed ever since his arrival but is improving Mrs. Sperry is also sick with lung fever, but is improving now

On the eve of the 19th inst, a school meeting was held and by almost a unanimous vote it was decided to build a new school house, costing $5,000, to be located in the gap between Mr J M Moyer's and Mr. W Cochran's land, just above Main street, in the western part of town

Many oak logs are being cut near this city and hauled to the mill here, to be made into lumber for the Portland market. Owing to dry weather this spring no logs have been floated down the Calipoola to either the saw mills here or in Albany, and the logging crew of the Albany company broke camp up the creek last Sunday morning and went home without getting any logs out this year

The all absorbing topic here the past week has been the removal of the woolen mills to Albany The necessary $25,000 bonus has been subscribed in Albany, and all that remains now is to arrange matters in regard to the water power from Mr Crawford, who is now absent in California, but expected home daily Should the woolen mills be moved from this city it will be a serious loss to us all, but there is strong talk of a home company taking hold, buying them and keeping them here A new project is also on foot here to enlarge the present tannery and put up a boot and shoe manufactory and go into business on quite an extensive scale by using home capital These two plans are steps in the right direction, and it is in our power to carry out both enterprises if citizens will only take hold in real earnest.

Lafayette is now without a tin shop

Mr Harrington of Missouri, has located here

Rev C C Poling's new house is about completed.

R. P Nugerman has removed his family to McMinnville

The Oregon Presbytery will meet at this place on the 9th of April.

Graham Glass, of the McMinnville Reporter, was in the city last week.

Miss Judd, of Newberg, has been stopping at this place the past week.

Roy Dick, of Salem, has purchased property and has moved his family here.

Four families from the East are now on the road to this place, and all will buy property here

Rev Travis, Presbyterian minister will soon bring his family from the East and locate here.

Governor Pennoyer, George McBride and E B McElroy, will visit this place on the 4th of April.

There is talk of putting on a morning and evening express on the narrow gauge between this place and Portland.

Mrs. Harriet Ewing, formerly of this place, died at Ellensburg, W T on the 21st of this month. She was taken to Ashland for burial.

Work will be begun soon on the Evangelical college It is intended to fix the building up in good shape. The college will be in running order by fall.

No vacant houses in town to rent What will families do that come here this fall to educate their children? Some one should build a few cottages to rent.

Lafayette people think they stand a good chance to have the Reform school located here Amos Cook offers his place for sale That would be a good location

Mr Ross, of Silverton, while working on the railroad bridge at this place got his foot caught under a bent, smashing it. A portion of the foot will have to be amputated

A Newberg correspondent speaks of a railroad from Lafayette to McMinnville What's the matter with the West Side road cutting off at St Joe and running through this place and over the narrow gauge road-bed to Portland.

CHEHALIS, LEWIS COUNTY.

The Enterprising Character of Its Citizens Plainly Shown.

Description of This Charmingly Located Town, and of the Silver and Coal Mines and Other Resources Round About

Coming into Chehalis on a Northern Pacific train its beautiful location and prosperous appearance invariably excite favorable comment among the passengers Stopping off, this favorable opinion is not lessened by contact with her citizens, who impress one as being unusually enterprising having all the "get there" qualities which would build up a city out of a town having a much poorer location than Chehalis But, having them backed by a diversity of resources seldom enjoyed by any one point, it would seem that it must be a question of but a short time before Chehalis takes her place as one of the leading towns in the territory

Looking into her history, it would seem that the fates themselves decreed that on this site a city should be, and that in obedience to their wishes she had grown and prospered notwithstanding a combination of powers sufficient to have eternally ruined any place less favorably situated

When the Northern Pacific railroad was built through this country in 1870 the present site of Chehalis was occupied as a farm The railroad company decided to establish a station at Newaukum two and one half miles south, and endeavored to build a town there But as the country commenced to settle up, the fact that Chehalis the town should be became apparent In 1872 the first store was opened here and Chehalis was made a flag station The year following a court house and other county buildings were erected and Chehalis became the county seat in place of Claquato, which had previously enjoyed that distinction As the town site remained the property of one person, however, and the owner refused to sell the town, notwithstanding its evident destiny, continued to drag along, making but little gain in population

It is only in the past few months that a change in the policy of the owner induced no doubt by the fact that owners of adjacent property had platted it and placed it in the market, threw the town open for settlement, and the result has been a growth which is rapid and substantial Chehalis is situated fifty five miles south of Tacoma and eighty-eight miles north of Portland at the confluence of the Chehalis and Newaukum rivers The site on which the town is built is highly attractive, being, for the most part a natural prairie, sloping gently from the low ground adjoining the rivers to a series of high hills, a spur of the Cascade mountains eighty miles away The gradual slope to the land, making the drainage natural and excellent, doubtless accounts for the universally good health

In the newer parts of town the streets are broad, laid out regularly and are fast being improved

The importance of a supply of water other than that to be had from the wells is realized, and city water will soon be supplied Two methods of obtaining it are being discussed either to pump it from the Newaukum river whose waters are fresh from mountain springs, to a reservoir built on the side of the hill sufficiently high above the city or by sinking a well in the hills large enough to obtain a sufficient head to supply the city The latter plan is considered feasible A test well is now being sunk, and if the results obtained are satisfactory, the town will doubtless be piped this season

Two things are essential to make any city a manufacturing center First Nearness to the raw material which can be obtained cheaply, together with a supply of cheap fuel, enabling the manufacturer to place his finished product on the market at a reasonable price, and second, proximity to a market. That Chehalis possesses these requisites in a marked degree is proved by the experience of her manufacturing establishments. At present her factories consist of a flouring mill, capable of grinding sixty barrels of flour a day together with the amount of shorts and bran which usually accompany that output of flour, an extensive planing mill and sash and door factory, two saw mills, a shingle mill, a brick yard and wagon factory Each of these establishments have been pushed to their utmost capacity to meet the demand made upon them for goods in their several lines, and have either recently enlarged or are about to do so

Messrs. Foedinghaus Bros., proprietors of the Chehalis Sash and Door Factory, have found it necessary to increase the capacity of their works by the erection of two large additions during the past season. One of these 30x50 feet and two stories high, they use for a wareroom and finishing department the other, 60x14 feet and two stories high, is occupied by additional machinery As their factory is now constituted it is one of the most complete in the Northwest The doors and sashes are made from cedar and fir sawed at their own mill. They ship their goods as far east as Montana

The Chehalis Flouring Mill Company is pre-eminently a Chehalis institution. It is owned and operated by Chehalis men and it grinds almost exclusively Chehalis wheat, or wheat which is raised in the neighborhood and marketed in Chehalis. That the mill has not increased its capacity is due to the fact that it is able to grind all the wheat raised in the Chehalis valley The increased acreage in wheat this season, with the prospect of a greater crop, however, will render an enlargement imperatively necessary

The sawmills, although having a capacity of 50,000 feet per day, have with difficulty been able to supply the local demand. Not only do they both expect to increase their output very shortly, but it is confidently expected that other extensive mills will be established during the spring.

The Chehalis Business Men's Association, composed of the most public spirited and enterprising men of the city, are corresponding with a number of manufacturing establishments in the East with a view to getting them to transfer their plants to Chehalis They recognize fully the value of manufactories to the city, and are willing to offer very substantial inducements to get them. They point to the uniform success of the present establishments as proof positive that Chehalis is a favorable point at which to make anything for which there is a market in the Northwest

In the way of educational and religious facilities Chehalis is the equal of any town in the territory The new public school building which is being erected cannot be surpassed by any school building in any of the largest cities. It occupies a commanding position on an elevation above the town, and will cost, when completed, $10,000 In height the building will be two stories with a basement It will contain seven class rooms two recitation rooms, with convenient ante rooms and outhouses, and will be equipped throughout with the most improved furniture

The churches of Chehalis are something of which every resident of the city is justly proud, The Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians Episcopalians and Catholics all have church buildings, and it is due to Chehalis to say that not a city in the territory, big or little, has more attractive ones. They all have pastors and are numerously attended

In the way of amusements, Chehalis is fortunate in possessing an opera house which would be a credit to any city It is handsomely fitted up and contains a complete stock of scenery

The secret societies are represented by the Masons, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias G A R and Woman's Relief Corps. The Odd Fellows are about to commence the erection of a very handsome lodge room, the cost of which is estimated at $2,500

It is safe to say that there is not a town west of the mountains in which the merchants are apparently more prosperous All branches of trade are well represented, the store rooms being extensive in size and filled with stocks which would be a credit to a much larger city

No better evidence of the growth of the town and the confidence which is felt that the growth is substantial could be desired than the action of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company The present depot facilities growing entirely inadequate, the company asked to be given more room on which to erect larger buildings Its request was promptly complied with by the Chehalis Land and Timber Company which deeded to it a strip 40x700 feet, about a quarter of a mile north of the location of the present depot To this land the present building will be removed and increased to double its present size As the railroad company desired to take advantage of the central location of Chehalis to establish a machine shop and round house there, Mr N Irish deeded them a lot 200 feet square to be used for that purpose

In the richness and extent of her mineral resources, Chehalis is remarkably fortunate In the bank of Mr N B Coffman the writer was shown some specimens of silver ore found in the mountains to the eastward, which had certainly a remarkably rich appearance Although no prospecting for any of the precious metals has been done there is a well settled conviction in the minds of the oldest inhabitants that both gold and silver will be found in paying quantities It would seem that there is no reason why this should not be done When it is done Chehalis by virtue of her position will be the town to profit by it,

The same vein of lignite coal which crops up out of the foothills from Tacoma south is found in the neighborhood of Chehalis in great abundance This coal, although poor in quality compared with the Eastern coal, is yet valuable for certain purposes. It is being mixed on a large scale at Bucoda and meets with a ready sale A discovery has been made recently however which has excited the residents of Chehalis greatly and which promises to be the forerunner of a new era of prosperity in the history of the town Extending from the main range of the Cascade mountains, some eighty miles distant, is a spur which ends abruptly in a series of high hills a short distance east of the city This range of hills forms the water shed between the waters of the Chehalis and Cowlitz river and Puget sound While prospecting along the southern slope recently, a Mr Kindred discovered what is confidently claimed by those best qualified to judge, to be a very excellent quality of anthracite coal Mr Kindred is an experienced coal miner and superintendent from Pennsylvania Immediately returning to Chicago he organized a company with sufficient capital to develop the mine should the indications upon investigation warrant it. A party of experienced miners were sent from the East with all the necessary implements and they have been encamped upon the spot for the past two weeks. The superintendent of the party, while in Chehalis yesterday, reported that the later developments were very encouraging The importance of this find will be realized when it is known that the only coal heretofore discovered west of the mountains is of the common lignite formation, which, while good enough for some purposes, is not of enough value to warrant its transportation to any considerable distance The location of the find is but thirteen miles from Chehalis and the route by which it is reached is so extremely favorable to railroad building that it is estimated a road can be built at a cost of not to exceed $11 000 per mile

Glance at Chehalis's position at the junction of two important streams each with sufficient water to float all the logs which can be hauled to their banks in the center of as fine a body of timber as can be found on the coast and you will be convinced that a more favorable inland point for the saw mill business can not be found The fact that the mills already in operation have had difficulty in supplying the local demand, which is constantly increasing, together with the accessibility of Chehalis to the markets of the Sound and of Portland and the other cities to the south, prove conclusively that the sawmill operator need never fear the lack of a demand for his goods. The Chehalis Land and Timber Company own several immense tracts of the finest timber lands together with some desirable sites for mills Being anxious to locate additional mills they propose to offer substantial inducements to parties who have the capital to establish their plants and operate them

An improvement which will be a great benefit to mill operators—the erection of a boom in the river—is being agitated and will probably be done soon Heretofore during freshets in the rivers quite a number of logs would be swept away entailing a loss which the millowners could ill afford to bear In addition to this during extreme low water in the summer time it is sometimes difficult to float the largest logs to the mills To render the mill men independent of high or low water, a boom is of vital importance This fact is realized by the prominent men of Chehalis and steps are now being taken to organize a stock company which will build one

But if it had no other advantages the immense body of agricultural lands lying around it and all directly tributary to it would alone support a large city

Lewis county located about midway between the Columbia river and Puget sound occupies an area of upwards of 2500 square miles It is said to embrace a larger area of fertile agricultural lands than any other county in Western Washington —extract from Governor Squire's message of 1886

These lands embrace all varieties from the surprisingly rich muck of the bottom lands—and in the valleys of the Chehalis and Newaukum rivers and their tributaries are thousands of acres of land of this character as yet unsurveyed and unsettled—to the no less wonderfully fertile though more friable and more easily worked lands of the foothills and elevated plains To the prospector looking for a location on which to establish himself a consideration of the following figures will undoubtedly show that he might go farther and fare worse than he would in Lewis county Although the county contains more than 2000 square miles, its population is estimated at but 9000, at least half of which is in the different towns At least one-third of its vast extent is as yet unsurveyed and unsettled In these parts the most desirable sections are still open to pre-emption and homestead. It is true that to secure a claim which embraces all the advantages it is necessary to go comparatively remote from present towns and railroads, but the great attention which the section is being given by the railroad builders gives assurance that it will be but a short time before the county will be crossed by several new lines of road, making what are now the most inaccessible parts of the county the most desirable. Some good claims are still left within but a few miles of Chehalis. If one wants to get nearer the city, plenty of good land at comparatively low prices can be had Of the land of the county, all but about 3000 acres, which were original prairie land and which are all taken up, are more or less heavily wooded To clear this, of course, takes time and labor, but the settler has the comfortable assurance that when the clearing is once done he has a farm which will yield any of the fruits, grasses or cereals grown anywhere in the temperate zone and in quantities which cannot be excelled by any other section It is a fact that in all the years in which this county has been settled and some of the old pioneers have been here for more than thirty years, a failure of crops has been absolutely unknown Not only that, but the greater productiveness of the soil, coupled with the fact that there are no long winters during which it is necessary to feed stock, insures more money from fewer acres than could be obtained any where in the East In connection with this the following figures, obtained by Mr N B. Coffman, president of the Chehalis Business Men's Association will be of interest. Mr Coffman addressed a circular letter to representative farmers of Lewis county requesting each one to give the record made on his farm. The following is the average yields, as tabulated from the answers received Average largest yield winter wheat, 48 bushels per acre average largest yield spring wheat, 43 bushels average largest yield oats, 73 bushels, average largest yield peas, 47 bushels, average largest yield potatoes, 371 bushels, average largest yield hay, 3½ tons. The above is the average largest yields. Individual yields which will greatly exceed them are common

A question which is of vital importance to the farmer is that of markets. There is but little satisfaction in raising big crops if they cannot readily be turned in o cash In this respect the farmers of Lewis county are fortunate The proximity of Chehalis to Portland and the sound cities, together with the numerous logging camps in the vicinity, insures a ready sale at good prices for all kinds of produce Hay, for instance, sells for from $12 to $20 per ton, and sometimes even higher, yet notwithstanding the great yield and the little work required to produce it thousands of tons are brought in from California every year The quality of every kind of farm produce is of the very best, the climate apparently being responsible for this The wheat, when ground, makes a flour which cannot be excelled for whiteness and deliciousness of flavor It requires a small admixture of Eastern Washington wheat, however, to give it body The flour made from Chehalis valley wheat, at the Chehalis mill, is considered the finest sold in Tacoma, at which point most of it is marketed

As a dairy country Lewis county promises to take front rank Throughout the county among the standing timber the pasturage is plentiful and of excellent quality, making milk and butter of superior richness and flavor Already the amount of milk shipped from Chehalis to Tacoma and Portland each day is considerable and at the present rate of growth it will be but a short time before a whole car will be required to transport the amount shipped to each city each day. That there is money in it is proved by the fact that some of the most successful farmers in Lewis county are beginning to devote almost their entire time to it As a fruit country Lewis county also excels. Apples, pears plums, prunes, cherries, and all kinds of small fruits attain a degree of perfection seldom equaled Some of the largest and finest appearing apples it has ever been the writer's pleasure to see he was shown in Chehalis, perfectly sound and in good condition, although kept since last season They were grown within two miles of Chehalis Prune culture is beginning to attract considerable attention and a number of quite extensive orchards are being set out. No orchards of any size are bearing yet but enough scattering trees have produced crops to prove that for productiveness and quality of the fruit, no prunes grown anywhere are superior to those of Lewis county

Of this vast country, containing locations for farmers which cannot be surpassed by any other forests which will produce enough timber to supply the country's needs for generations, and mineral lands sufficient to employ an army of miners Chehalis is the county seat and the natural center Her people are progressive and alive to the necessity of increasing her population and to that end are prepared to welcome immigration They are prepared to offer manufacturers and mill men inducements which it will pay them to investigate The Chehalis Business Men's Association, the officers of which are N B Coffman president, and M L Noftsger, secretary, is composed of the leading business men of Chehalis

A SIGNIFICANT AVOWAL.

An Influential Democratic Paper Pronounces Against Its Party's Policy

Augusta (Ga) Chronicle (Dem)

Some of the newspapers that led the democratic party into the ditch of defeat seem to be disappointed at the conservative tone and national sentiments of President Harrison's inaugural. They expected him to be bitterly partisan and sectional, and because he has been patriotic and national they are disappointed As democrats and Southerners we are agreeably surprised and pleased with the moderate, dignified and statesmanlike address of President Harrison

The South needs protection for her development She needs government appropriations for internal improvements—to improve the navigation of her rivers and harbors for waterways between the lakes and the gulf and the Atlantic and the Mississippi, for the repair and construction of fortifications along her defenseless coast for the construction of navy yards in harbors of the South, where iron and timber are cheap and abundant, for subsidies to Southern steamship lines, carrying the iron and manufactures thereof and cotton goods and merchandise to the 50,000,000 people in the countries south of us, who have $500 000,000 to spend annually for money to educate the ignorant masses throughout the South, and for all other honest and legitimate purposes where it can be expended for the benefit of the people, and where private corporations and states even are unable by themselves to undertake and perfect enterprises of national importance

All these are embraced in the policy of President Harrison as outlined in his address. The president says that he will not have a sectional policy and we accept this wise and just and patriotic declaration We detect nothing between the lines about the old regime of force and repression The South has reason to rejoice at the high plane upon which the inaugural of President Harrison has been pitched With protection to our industries internal improvements, which embrace our waterways, rivers and harbors and subsidies for the development of Southern commerce with Mexico, Central and South America, the South should develop and prosper as she never has before. If the pessimists and the men who make a trade of politics will only give the South a fair chance, she will be the richest and most prosperous section of the Union inside of twenty years.

W. J. Warren, a farmer, testified that he lived near [illegible] away [illegible] McCune [illegible] from the [illegible] conversation of McCune and Bewley's [illegible] just before the shooting. [illegible]

Cross-examination [illegible] McCune [illegible] daughter [illegible] had been to McMinnville. I told him that [illegible] lock her up.

Further testimony was sought to show the hostility of the Bewleys to be quarantine and was partially successful.

Roswell Bewley, deceased's son, was standing by and participated in the shooting. McCune told father after arresting him to get down off the cart and then stepped back and fired one shot at father and one at me; my pistol was on my horse in the livery stable which I got at [illegible] and came out and saw McCune firing at him.

Cross-examination: Father had a pistol in a scabbard that morning; I don't know where it was at the time of the shooting. I fired five shots and emptied my pistol.

OUT OF QUARANTINE.

The Columbia Allowed to Land Her Passengers,

WHO ARE EXTREMELY INDIGNANT

A Tug About to Sail for the Columbia River Sinks at Her Dock—Huntington Talks About the Southern Pacific

SAN FRANCISCO, March [illegible].—The steamer [illegible] which has been in quarantine for the last fifteen days was permitted to dock to-day on order of the [illegible] and the passengers were [illegible] quarantine cost [illegible] $6000.

Many of the passengers denounced the quarantine [illegible]

[illegible] said: When the child came on board she had been vaccinated six weeks [illegible] voyage to Astoria she was seasick the whole time and a slight rash broke out on her.

At Astoria the quarantine officer [illegible] who has held the position for thirty years [illegible] did not need the eruption chicken pox. Not satisfied with his own diagnosis he called in another physician and their verdict was that the child was suffering from chicken pox aggravated by the vaccination a short time previous.

After leaving Astoria she was again [illegible] never left her cabin until we reached San Francisco. Then the quarantine officers came aboard. [illegible] police officers were on board on several occasions, boats plied between the vessel and shore, and boatmen went on and off at all hours of the day and yet we were kept out there and not allowed to land until our business went to the dogs. It was an outrage of the worst kind. These quarantine laws are a farce. This child could have come from Oregon on an overland train and crossed the bay on a ferry boat. If the quarantine officer had found her on a ferry steamer would he have placed the vessel with all on board in quarantine? Not much. The child could have crossed the bay to go to one of the hotels and when it had leaked out that she had the smallpox she would have been sent to the pesthouse and the hotel fumigated and that would have been all there would have been to it.

This quarantining of passengers by steamers is discriminating in favor of those coming by rail, and is not fair to the steamboat companies.

Governor Perkins, who was standing by during the delivery of the foregoing remarks, said: The agents of the Columbia are zealous in protecting the health of the city. All of their interests are here and their families live in San Francisco. They would not permit a man to land from any of their steamers if they thought there was any risk of contagious [illegible] But after all on board had been vaccinated, the ship thoroughly fumigated and all the bedding taken out and everything washed down I think it was unjust to keep the vessel in quarantine fifteen days. After taking those precautions a hotel would be immediately released and ready to receive visitors. I certainly am of the opinion that steamers are discriminated against.

SANK AT HER DOCK

A Strange Accident to a Tug Billed for the Columbia River.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—The tug boat C. M. Belshaw sunk in the bay at the end of the Pacific street wharf where she was at anchor to-day. She was owned by the Hume Packing Company and was loaded with coal [illegible] for the fisheries. Great difficulty was experienced in getting any one to sail the tug, as she was only of about eighteen tons burden and was very old. The exact cause of her sinking cannot be found out until she is raised. Whitelaw's wrecker was at work on her yesterday and the larger part of the deck load of coal will be saved.

PARTICULARS.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—A strange accident was the sinking of the steamer C. M. Belshaw at the Pacific street wharf to-day. She is a steam tug owned by George W. Hume, who intended to send her up to the Columbia river for towing purposes. The tug was to have sailed to-morrow. Capt Bob Hubbard was to have gone in command, it being understood that he and his engineer were to have $250 for the trip. Yesterday fourteen tons of coal were placed in the Belshaw, an unusually large load, so that very little free board was allowed.

Sometime after midnight the watchman went down below to turn in when he observed water on deck and perceived that the steamer was sinking and bolted ashore [illegible] He had hardly reached the wharf when the steamer went down.

When Captain Hubbard and his engineer reached the wharf this morning, loaded with [illegible] they looked in vain for their ship. Their chagrin was only increased by the facetious remarks of bystanders that it was a good chance to paint your mast, captain.

The reason of the sinking was presumably overloading with coal. Water it is thought must have leaked through the seams in the top sides which it is said had not been recently caulked. That it was not caused by the tautening of the lines when the tide fell was shown by the lines being quite whole.

It has been generally prophesied that the C. M. Belshaw would sink before she got to Astoria, and it is said Captain Hubbard was the only man that could be procured to go on her. He was frequently told by his friends that the tug would never get over the bar.

Captain Whitelaw, the wrecker, was engaged and laid his steamer alongside and commenced to get the tug to the surface. The Belshaw is 73 feet long, 10.4 feet beam, 5.3 feet deep and about eight years old. She has been towing on rivers and the bay until the owner conceived the idea of sending her up to the Columbia river.

THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC

Huntington Talks About the Projected Extension in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—Speaking further of the Southern Pacific's projections, C. P. Huntington said to-day: "We will lay considerable track in California this year, perhaps two or three hundred miles altogether, just where, it is hard to say. There will be some added to the coast line to Santa Barbara. I am going down to this end of the track to see just what physical obstructions there are. Some new track will be put in the San Joaquin valley down from Oakdale. We will run about fourteen miles around Monterey peninsula. We will possibly do something on the Lake county line, although, perhaps, not at first.

"It is the policy of the Southern Pacific to build the greater part of its extensions, etc., in California. The projected line from Portland to Seattle, of which W. E. Brown is director, has no Southern Pacific money back of it. We have no ambition to go north of the Columbia river. I favored getting the California & Oregon line and worked three years to do it. It is a good piece of property, and will pay well in time. If the Northern Pacific had kept control of it to the California boundary, it would have been like a local road.

"I am certain that the Southern Pacific has no interest whatever in the Pacific Short Line projected from Sioux City to Ogden. It is a long way between those points. It may be a shorter line than the Union Pacific in survey, but a railroad man reckons grades to be overcome in his estimate of the shortness of the route. That is of more importance than the directness. We may extend the line from Willows westward or the branch route may be changed for a branch further north."

THE ENGLISH MAPS WERE WRONG

Most of the International Company's Lands Within the Limits of the United States

SAN FRANCISCO, March [illegible].—A special to the Examiner, from Ensenada, Lower California, says: A discovery is reported here which is said to be filling the International Company with dread. It is said that by a mistake in the English maps at the time of the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, the boundary line between the United States and Mexico was placed sixty miles too far north and that the real boundary strikes the Pacific ocean at a point some distance south of Ensenada.

The treaty prescribes that the line shall cut the mouth of the Colorado river, but the English maps, the only maps extant at that time, had the Gila river, whose mouth is near the Yuma, incorrectly marked as the Colorado river. The mouth of the Colorado is sixty miles south of Yuma at Point Isabel, and if the boundary line were to be drawn at that point it would place the [illegible] of the town of Ensenada and all the country north of these places within the limits of the United States.

CALIFORNIA SILK CULTURE.

Governor Waterman Puts a Damper on Those Interested in the Enterprise.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—Governor Waterman's action in vetoing the item of $10,000 in the general appropriation bill, which was designed to support the state board of silk culture, has caused a great deal of apprehension among those interested in the culture of silk that their project will fall through.

The board has several thousand dollars worth of stock on hand including worms, which must be used or prove a total loss.

Mrs Rienzi, secretary of the board, said yesterday that no course had been decided on. A number of prominent business men, she said, are considering the advisability of maintaining the bureau for the next two years, or until the advent of the new administration, but should they fail to do so everything will have to be disposed of for just what it will bring. This would be a great sacrifice of valuable property. But we do not see how it can be avoided if the financial support of the board be altogether removed.

A REMARKABLE INCIDENT.

A Flock of Wild Geese Struck by Lightning and Seventy-eight Killed.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—A special from Gonzales, Tex., says: During the heavy rain and thunder storm of this morning a flock of wild geese flying over the town was struck by lightning and seventy-eight were killed. They were picked up by the boys and sold on the streets for 10 cents each. Some of the geese were badly torn up by the electric current.

The incident was the subject of universal comment here.

Dubois, of the sub-treasury, received a letter yesterday from John Clarke, agent of the Alaska Fur Company at Nushagak, dated at that place January 21, 1889. In the letter Clarke states that Lord Lonsdale, the English nobleman, whose escapades in [illegible] have made him notorious the world over, has been sojourning in that place for about a month. He intends soon to leave for this city coming by way of Kodiak, Sitka and Victoria.

There is a flutter of anticipation among Southern Pacific officials over the expected visit here of a special committee on Pacific railroads. This committee has arranged to make a trip of about six weeks duration over the lines of the Central and Union Pacific, starting from Omaha April 6.

The bitter feud between rival organizations has been greatly aggravated by recent murderous affrays in Chinatown, and the police believe there are indications of another highbinders' outbreak. The warring factions are threatening to settle their grievances with revolvers and sheath knives, with which they are now heavily armed. Their old revolvers have been discarded for new ones of the latest improved designs and iron bars have been changed for sheath knives. Detectives who are investigating Monday's shooting affray report that the feeling between the rival societies [illegible] and more bloodshed may be expected at any moment.

The Alaska Fishing Business.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—Speaking about the fisheries as they appear to the people here a commission merchant said to-day: It would have been dull here this spring had it not been for the Alaska business. It has caused business to be extremely active. There have been over five times as many vessels fitted for the Alaska fisheries as last year, or than ever before. There have been over fifty ships, some of them of over 1700 tons each, besides an immense number of schooners. The Karluk Canning Company, the Commercial Company and one or two others are the leading ones. They are all engaging heavily in the salmon trade. Nearly all the vessels have now either left for the north or are on the eve of leaving.

The Proposed Light-Ship.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—Preparations are going forward for the establishment of a light and fog signal vessel off the mouth of the Columbia river, for which the last congress appropriated $60,000. Captain Sebree, lighthouse inspector, gives Professor Davidson, of the coast survey, the credit of being first to advocate this aid to navigation. It is expected that the ship will be built, equipped and placed in position in a little over a year. It will be permanently anchored a number of miles from shore in about fifteen fathoms of water, and will bear a first-class light and fog signal. About it pilot boats will await incoming vessels.

Ciprico Acquitted

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—The jury to-day acquitted Ferdinand Ciprico, charged with issuing fraudulent Chinese certificates, in the United States district court. Judge Sawyer's charge to the jury was favorable to the defendant.

There are two indictments still pending against Ciprico of even date with the one upon which he was acquitted, but District Attorney Carey has not decided whether or not he will push them. As the testimony would come from about the same sources which he has found so unreliable in the recent trial it is likely they will be dropped and all concerned in the great certificate frauds, except Hinz, will go free.

Suit to Recover Millions

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—The Benton Consolidated Company has filed a complaint in the superior court against the estate of Seth Cook, deceased, to recover $1,029,500. Plaintiff alleges that deceased, by combination with the board of directors, converted [illegible] of the company's shares to his own use. The stock is valued at $100 per share.

The same company has brought suit against the Alta Silver Mining Company to recover $[illegible]. The directors of the Benton Company were controlled by the Alta company and the latter, it is charged, appropriated money belonging to the former and suit is brought to regain possession of the amount.

The Puget Sound Steamer Line

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—The steamer Mexico, which has been laid up for some time undergoing repairs, is now in first-class condition. She will sail Sunday next for Victoria and Puget sound ports, taking the place of the Umatilla. The Umatilla has been chartered by J. D. Spreckles & Bros and will sail for Honolulu Sunday, taking the place of the Australia.

The steamer [illegible] has sailed for Alaska in command of Captain Carroll. She will be engaged during the summer season in running between Puget Sound ports and Alaska in connection with other steamers of the line.

On a Charge of Embezzlement

SAN FRANCISCO, March [illegible].—Jacob Pfunder has been held to answer before the superior court in Oakland with bail fixed at $5,000, on a charge of embezzlement. Pfunder was recently brought back from Portland, Or., where he had gone after a trip to Europe. When Francisco M. Dewart died his wife continued to manage Winder's hotel and while acting as her clerk it is alleged that Pfunder left with a good supply of the widow's coin.

Conflict in the New Mining Camp.

SAN DIEGO, March [illegible].—Serious trouble is reported from a new mining camp five miles from Santa Clara. A quartz claim, with free gold, is held by armed Mexicans whose rights are disputed by American prospectors, and bloodshed is likely to ensue. Governor Torres has been asked for troops and an officer has been sent for and is hastening there with a squad of Mexican cavalry.

Mentally a Wreck

TORONTO, March 27.—When W. H. Harvey was placed in the dock this morning to answer to the charge of having murdered his wife and two daughters at Guelph yesterday, his appearance was that of a man completely broken down mentally and physically. From his looks there is no doubt that the man is insane.

After the formal entry of the charge Harvey was sent in custody of constables to Guelph.

In the commons Hon. W. H. Smith, the government leader, with much emotion referred to the death of Mr Bright. He said he would postpone his remarks on Bright until Friday, when Gladstone would be present. Many thanked Smith for his consideration in regard [illegible] Bright represented the central division of Birmingham in the house.

Sculptor Bruce Joy has taken a cast of Bright's face.

Political deputations will follow the funeral. Only personal friends will be admitted to the meeting in the house.

At political meetings throughout the country this evening sympathetic references were made to Bright.

Mr Chamberlain writes: By Mr Bright's death we have lost the most unique figure among the English statesmen and popular leaders of the present generation. The consistency and completeness of his career and the massive simplicity of his character mark him out from all others [illegible] having fought his last fight, his death is a universal loss to both party and country.

Londoners comment feelingly and refer to the deceased in terms of high eulogy.

THE FUNERAL CEREMONIES.

The funeral of John Bright will take place Saturday. The interment will be in the Quaker burying ground at Rochdale. The ceremonies will be as private as possible.

VICTORIA AT SAN SEBASTIAN

A Grand Reception by Christina, Queen Regent of Spain.

SAN SEBASTIAN, March 27.—Queen Victoria paid her expected visit to San Sebastian to-day. Her majesty was accompanied by Prince and Princess Henry of Battenburg, and the members of her suite, including Lady Churchill, Sir Francis Ford, the British embassador at Madrid, and the representatives of Queen Regent Christina. The royal visitors arrived on the frontier where a train was waiting to convey her majesty to San Sebastian.

Upon the arrival of the train here, the queen was greeted with salutes of artillery and volleys from the troops that lined the route to the royal castle.

The queen regent, accompanied by the duchess Baeza, and the Countess Sastago, was waiting at the station, together with a number of officials and a deputation. The queen upon alighting from the train kissed Christina on both cheeks.

After mutual presentations the two queens entered a street carriage and drove to the castle. As the royal carriage passed between a long line of troops on either side of the roadway the military band played the national anthem and the populace cheered enthusiastically. In the second carriage were Prince and Princess Henry of Battenburg, while the five others were occupied by the Spanish officials and the members of Victoria's suite.

Luncheon was served at the castle and shortly before 4 o'clock the whole party re-entered the carriage and were driven to the town hall, where a sumptuous throne had been erected. Here Victoria formally received the mayor of the town. Her majesty afterwards witnessed a series of Basque dances and games. When the entertainment was concluded the party drove to the railway station.

The queen regent with her suite entered Victoria's carriage and accompanied her majesty to Irun, where affectionate farewells were exchanged.

THE CODE IS NOT DEAD

A Duel Fought as a Sequel to the Austrian Tragedy

VIENNA, March 27.—Count Hoyos, the trusted friend of the late Crown Prince Rudolph, is said to have fought a duel with and shot Count Baltazzi, uncle of the late Baroness Vetsera, whose death was associated with that of the crown prince. The duel is said to have been fought at a village in the south of France.

THE JESUITS IN CANADA

Continuation of the Discussion in the Dominion Parliament

OTTAWA, March 27.—In the commons to-day Dalton McCarthy resumed the debate on the question. He said that the act should be disallowed whether the legislature had the authority to pass it or not. Disallowance of the bill was a matter of public policy. McCarthy read a recital in connection with the bill which, he said, was unheard of in the history of the British parliament. It was a disgraceful spectacle, he said.

He would show that the Jesuits' estates for a century belonged to the public domain. The award was simply a misappropriation. The Jesuits had no legal existence in Canada, and their properties were vested in the crown. If the supremacy act is in force no foreigner, whether spiritual or temporal, should interfere with legislation. He denied the right of any persons to keep silent on a question like this even when assured that the Jesuits were under the aegis of the pope.

A SWINDLER TRAPPED.

An Alleged Priest Who Wanted to Present the Pope With Diamonds.

TORONTO, March 27.—A swindler who plays the part of a priest and entraps jewelers into selling him watches and jewels on forged checks, was arrested last night. It is believed he is wanted in England and the leading cities of the United States for work of this sort. The trick which led to his arrest was an attempt to get $1500 worth of diamonds for a present to the pope from the priests of Toronto.

ADMITS HIS GUILT.

The man giving the name of G. Barnett, of Ottawa, who was arrested here last night, disguised as a priest, on the charge of swindling jewelers, was taken before the police magistrate to-day. He admitted his guilt, and was remanded for a week, in order that his record might be examined.

An Alleged Plot Against the Czar

LONDON, March 27.—The Vienna Tageblatt publishes a story of the narrow escape the czar and czarina had while traveling from St Petersburg to Gatschina. It is said that an obstruction was found on the line over which the imperial train was to pass and several persons have been arrested for connection with the alleged plot against the czar's life. The story is not confirmed.

THE CHAE CHANG PING CASE

The Main Facts as Set Forth in the Statement of the Appellant's Counsel.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—There being no quorum present when the supreme court met to-day, adjournment was taken until to-morrow. Should a quorum be in attendance then the court will immediately proceed to the hearing of the arguments in the case of Chae Chang Ping, appellant, vs. the United States. This case involves the constitutionality of the Scott exclusion act, approved by the president October 1, 1888.

The facts in the case, as set forth in the statement of the counsel for the appellant upon the motion to advance the case for argument, are as follows: Appellant is a Chinese laborer and a subject of China and departed from the United States for China on June 2, 1887. Before doing so he applied to and obtained from the collector of the port of San Francisco the return certificate required by section 4 of the Chinese restriction act of May 6, 1882, as amended July 5, 1884. He returned to the United States on October 7, 1888, and presented the certificate to the collector and claimed the right to land thereunder, but permission was refused by the collector on the sole ground that under the provisions of the act commonly known as the Scott exclusion act of October 1, 1888, the certificate presented by the appellant had been declared void and of no effect.

He sued out a writ of habeas corpus in the United States circuit court and after a hearing the court ordered appellant to be remanded to the custody from which he had been taken. His custody was the captain of the ship which had brought him back to the United States. From that judgment of remand he has appealed to this court.

The counsel for the appellant contended that the question involved in this case is whether that portion of the act of October 1, 1888, declaring laborers' certificates void and of no effect, is valid and constitutional. As will be perceived, they say this proposition involves a question of both national and international importance.

The counsel further contend that the laborers who departed from the United States with these return certificates were guaranteed by the treaty between the United States and China, of November [illegible], 1880, and the act of May 6, 1882, the right to go and come, and without warning or notice, this treaty was virtually abrogated, and the vested rights acquired thereunder are entirely swept away. The faith and honor of the government, they say, is also involved in the case now before the court. These certificates contain upon their face the promise on the part of the government that the holders thereof shall, upon the presentation of the certificates, be entitled to return to and re-enter the United States.

If the act is unconstitutional, the counsel say it is necessary that a speedy determination of this case should be had so that the laborers may return and avail themselves of the rights and privileges guaranteed to them by the treaty and act of 1882, and if the act is valid it is just as necessary that it should be so determined immediately so that those who have acquired property interests here may take some means of protecting these interests.

Ex-Governor Hoadly, of Ohio, and James C. Carter, of New York, will represent the case for the appellant before the court, and Solicitor General Jenks will appear for the government. J. F. Swift, recently confirmed as minister to Japan, Attorney General Johnson, of California, and S. M. White, of California, will also be present to look after the interests of the state of California in the case.

THE ILL-FATED VESSEL.

Little Doubt Felt That It Was the Steamer Conserva.

NEW YORK, March 27.—There is little doubt now that the Conserva is the ill-fated ship which strewed the Virginia coast last week with the wreckage of her timbers. Notwithstanding the reports to the contrary the Conserva was unseaworthy. It is said by an officer who was engaged for the trip, but who declined to go after finding out the condition of the vessel, that the boilers leaked, as also did her hull.

The Conserva had twenty-seven souls on board. Her crew was entirely composed of Southern half breeds and Malays.

Captain John Henry Anker, who has had a long and somewhat checkered career in the West Indian waters, commanded the ship. The other officers were: First mate, [illegible] Sherwood; second mate, John McCarthy; chief engineer, Charles Lankam, of Brooklyn; first assistant engineer, Charles St Clair, and second assistant engineer, Charles V. Elder. Carl Kunhardt, an expert yachtsman of New York, was also on board.

Henry Kunhardt has a different theory. He believes that if the Conserva collided with another vessel she would not be cut in two but that the other vessel would. He thinks the Conserva's boats were lowered to help the persons on the other vessel and abandoned on account of the heavy seas. He thinks that the white chairs and sofas found belonged to the Nanticoke and not the Conserva, for the latter's furniture was painted in colors.

He Informs a Press Reporter of His Anxiety to Fight Johnny Reagan

NEW YORK, March 27.—Jack Dempsey, talking to a reporter, said: I am going to attend to Johnny Reagan's case. I will go to the Police Gazette office and see if he can't be induced to make a match for $2500. If we can't agree on the amount of the stake I'll fight Reagan for $1000 a side before either of the California athletic clubs if they will add a purse of $2,000 or $3000 to the winner. It ought to suit my young friend, and there should be no trouble in getting the California Golden Gate Athletic Club to put up such a purse, as they would make plenty of money out of the show. I'm going to California soon anyhow and Reagan had [illegible] of going to Frisco for sometime. Now there's the chance of his life.

To show how anxious I am to fight Reagan for any amount worth [illegible] I would be willing to meet him under the Marquis of Queensberry rules, although championship battles are always decided under London rules. After our last fight Reagan claimed that it was nothing but a wrestling match, and that I won because I was better at that sport. As a matter of fact, before the fight Reagan [illegible] he would give me $500 to change the rules to the Queensberry rules. I can beat him as easy that way as under the London rules.

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC

A Special Meeting of the Directors to Consider the Wisconsin Central Agreement

NEW YORK, March 27.—The board of directors of the Northern Pacific held a special meeting at the office of the company this morning, for the purpose of taking action on the proposed agreement with the Wisconsin Central railroad. The board adjourned after a brief session without taking action, at the request of the executive committee, which, notwithstanding the long session of yesterday, could not complete the report on the subject which it desired to submit. After the adjournment of the board the committee went immediately into session.

VILLARD ABOUT TO SHOW HIS HAND.

NEW YORK, March 27.—The Times financial article says: The deal between the Northern Pacific and the Wisconsin Central, to be determined soon, is no unloading scheme in the interest of the Wisconsin Central. The big benefits are for the Northern Pacific. Villard, who is about ready to show his hand in Northern Pacific affairs, has big schemes afoot for the good of the property.

SANDBAGGED AND ROBBED.

Mysterious Experience of an Officer of the Army.

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 27.—To-day an officer of the war department at Washington came here to take charge of Captain Craft of the United States army, who has been in confinement here since Monday evening. The captain arrived here on a train from the West on that evening and at the station acted as though demented. He was taken in charge and locked up and watched, for fear he might do himself bodily injury.

Last night he became more rational, and said the last thing he could remember was somebody striking him on the head with the end of a revolver. A gold watch and three hundred dollars in cash he said was missing.

It is the theory of the police that Captain Craft was sandbagged and robbed, and then placed on the train at some point west of this city, probably Pittsburg. He was taken to Washington this afternoon.

RAILROAD CONSOLIDATION.

The Directors of Two Companies Come to a Satisfactory Agreement.

NEW YORK, March 27.—The directors of the Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati & Indianapolis railroad met to-day and voted in favor of the consolidation of that road with the Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St Louis & Chicago road. The agreement will now be voted on by the stockholders of both companies at their annual meeting in May.

The two companies will form a new company, to be called the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, with $10,000,000 preferred stock and $20,500,000 common stock.

Before the consolidation goes into effect the Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati & Indianapolis will declare a cash dividend out of the surplus at the end of last year and the net earnings.

HIS THROAT WAS CUT.

An Elderly Man Foully Murdered by His Companion in a Hotel.

PORT HURON, March 27.—Two strangers came to Smith's Creek, a small station about twelve miles from here, last evening, and engaged a room at the Lindsay house. One of the men was about 50 years of age and the other considerably younger. The latter left the hotel early in the evening. The elder man did not appear this morning and the room was broken into. He was found lying across the bed with his throat cut from ear to ear, dead.

How the Late James B. Stephens Disposed of His Large Estate.

A List of the Deeds Given—Foul Quarters—Foundation Laid—Small Blaze Quenched—Memorial Services.

The estate of the late James B. Stephens may be considered as having been settled. It was valued at about $150,000. For some time he had been making cash bequests amounting to a considerable sum, and the deeds that have just been delivered were the final wind up. The interest at where his house stands was estimated at $90,000 and was disposed of as follows: Mrs. Rose Jones, the block the house stands on, valued at $10,000; school district 21, ground between the railroad and Third street, valued at $16,000; Mrs. M. A. Bate, ground west of the railroad and fronting on the river, valued at $20,000; Frank [illegible], of La Grande, ground east of the railroad, valued at $15,000; James McAyeal, ground east of the railroad, valued at $7000; Mrs. C. H. [illegible] Raffety, ground west of the railroad and fronting on the river for 400 feet, valued at $20,000. The homestead was never laid off into lots and blocks, and each of the above pieces is more than one block, while that of Mrs. Raffety is about four blocks. A farm of 640 acres in Washington county, valued at $12,800, was deeded to Henry Jones, and a farm valued at $4000 was also deeded to Sam T. Stephens. As there might be remnants in settling up so large an estate, in order to [illegible] everything, the remainder, if any, was deeded to Henry Jones. All this property is very valuable, and if the lucky parties hold on to their portion long enough it will double in value on their hands in a few years.

NEEDS VENTILATION.

The ventilation of the Salvation Army barracks is very bad, and should be attended to at once. In fact, there is no ventilation at all. The only way a breath of fresh air can get into the hall is when the front door is opened to admit some one, or let some one pass out. Every night the hall is packed to its utmost capacity, and the atmosphere is suffocating with foul and nauseating odors. It is so bad that one could almost cut it up into chunks. The members of the "Army" do not seem to care much for the atmosphere, as the louder the smell is the louder they yell. Last night there was a grand blow-out. There were several captains, colonels, etc., present from abroad. Ice cream, with the "sweet" atmosphere, was served, and a lively time was had.

MEMORIAL SERVICES.

The usual Sabbath school hour of the Centenary M. E. school next Sunday will be devoted to a memorial service in honor of Mrs. J. C. Mendenhall. There will be a short address made by some of her co-workers in the school, interspersed with singing. Mrs. Mendenhall has been a faithful teacher in the school for over five years, and for the greater part of the time has had charge of the infant class. She will be greatly missed by the scholars of this class as well as by the officers and teachers of the school. Everybody are cordially invited to be present.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION.

The foundation for West's new brick building, on Fourth and M streets, is now being laid, but the brickwork cannot be commenced for about six weeks on account of the fact that brick can not be obtained for the purpose. When the brick yards start up which will not be long now, there will be an ample supply.

SMALL BLAZE.

Yesterday morning Mr. Tuttle, who lives on Eleventh and Alaska streets, discovered a fire in his barn, which he succeeded in extinguishing before it got under headway. A large hole was burned in the side of the barn. It evidently had been set on fire by some one, as there was no other way for fire to start in the barn.

NOTES.

A very pleasant members' meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was held last night.

Frank Logan is having a fine residence built on the corner of Fifth and F streets.

Don't throw away $25 when you can save it by purchasing pianos at Tom Parrott's new music store.

RATTLESNAKES.

They Do Eat, and Is It Cruelty to Keep Them Shut Up in a Box?

PORTLAND, March 27.

To THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN.

In this morning's paper an article treating of "Abstemious Reptiles" says: "No man ever saw a rattlesnake, like other snakes, distended from previous food gorging."

On the contrary, I have had to make an incision in a rattlesnake's stomach and withdraw an entire rabbit not yet touched by the digestive process before I could take off the reptile's jacket.

I was told that I owed my escape from a bite to the animal's lethargy after his dinner. But the man who talks of our Northern species must be reminded that in the Southern states there is a very much more important animal than ours: a snake growing to a length of seven feet and as large as the ordinary man's arm in his overcoat sleeve. The specimen I have named was a trifle under six feet in length.

Meanwhile, the paper containing a narrative of the cruelty to this miserable reptile has also a report of the "Oregon Humane Society," but —— Yours truly,

The Quarantine of the Columbia—Movements of Various Deep Water Vessels and Steamers.

The steamer Columbia which has been lying in quarantine grounds in San Francisco bay since the 16th inst., was to have been released yesterday, that is, this was the understanding between Goodall, Perkins & Co. and Edward Cookingham, esq., of the O. R. & N. Co. two days ago. If the steamer was released according to the above understanding, she will be thoroughly fumigated, loaded, and will sail for Portland at 9 o'clock this morning. Owing to the Columbia's long detention, a large amount of business has accumulated, which could not be handled by the two steamers, State of California and the Oregon, so that the quarantined vessel will have plenty to count on. If it is as they claim, an expense to them of about $1000 for every day the Columbia is tied up, the O. R. & N. Co. is out over $10,000, by the quarantine of the steamer. This is not mentioning the inconvenience to the Columbia's cabin passengers, who were not allowed their liberty long after the steerage passengers were released. They are, as can well be imagined, very bitter against the San Francisco board of health.

The British India is engaged by C. Caesar & Co. to load wheat for the United Kingdom, and the Dunscore by the Portland Flour mills. The only disengaged vessel of the fleet is the Ottospond which is lying at Astoria. It will be remembered that this is one of the vessels that forfeited a [illegible] charter by being behind time in her arrival at Astoria.

The salmon canning season opens next Monday. In consequence the lower Columbia assumes a very lively appearance. Great preparations are being made for a large pack this season. This will give employment to several thousand men, who, as a general thing, do not do much during the winter.

It is stated that several coasting vessels are bar-bound in Gray's harbor, where they have been detained for several weeks by the severe weather that has prevailed during that time on the coast.

Inspectors McDermott and Ferguson will go down to Astoria today where they will inspect among others the little steamers, Frolic, Improvement and Brisk.

The steamer State of California arrived at her dock from the bay city at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon with a full general cargo and about 100 passengers.

The bark Ruthwell crossed over the bar bound for the United Kingdom at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning with 23,135 bbls of flour valued at $[illegible].

The little steamer A. B. Field, which has lately undergone a complete overhauling, has resumed her run, commanded by Captain Archie Conn.

The steamer Idaho sailed from Astoria yesterday with a large number of men and a quantity of supplies for the Alaskan canneries.

The British ship Brambletye from Astoria for Queenstown was spoken January 15, in latitude 56 south, longitude 77 west.

The coasting schooner Marion, lumber laden, arrived at Astoria yesterday morning from this city in tow of the Wonder.

The German bark Adele, in tow of the E. N. Cook, arrived from this city in Astoria yesterday morning at 8:30 o'clock.

Captain Carnachan, of the City of Canton, is lying quite ill on board his vessel at the O. R. & N. dock in Astoria.

The Ocklahama arrived at Astoria from this city at 8 o'clock yesterday morning with the Æolus in tow.

The City of Carlisle is still lying in the stream opposite Weidler's mill taking on lumber.

The Danube was engaged in taking in flour at the foot of Jefferson street yesterday.

The Hornby Castle is ready to take in her stiffening of wheat.

The Cartmore is taking in ballast at Irving dock.

AGAINST RUNNING SUNDAY TRAINS.

A Remonstrance From Quaker Citizens of Newberg—Mr. William Reid's Response.

In response to the request of many persons Mr. Wm. Reid, vice president of the Portland & Willamette Valley Railroad Company, has consented to run Sunday trains on that company's road, which extends from this city to Dundee junction, a distance of twenty-nine miles. There will be two Sunday trains, beginning on Sunday next.

Hearing that these trains were to be put on the citizens of Newberg, a thrifty and prosperous town near Dundee junction, who are principally Quakers, have sent a remonstrance to Mr. Reid urging him not to run any trains on Sunday, quoting for his benefit the commandment "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy" and other phrases of a kindred nature, with which they naturally supposed Mr. Reid was unfamiliar. However if he is not sound on the scriptures his head is level in matters of business, and he returned the following answer to the remonstrance:

PORTLAND, March 27.

To Jesse Edwards and Others of the Society of Friends, Newberg, Oregon—Referring to the remonstrance which you have presented to us against the running of Sunday trains upon the Portland & Willamette Valley railway and your disapproval of same, you are aware that in this enlightened republic it is scarcely fair for any minority of a community to dictate to the majority the course of action which the latter should pursue, especially as regards the keeping of the Sabbath day. It would seem, therefore, to us unwise for any special Christian sect to remonstrate against their neighbors and fellow citizens enjoying recreation by traveling on Sunday trains from Portland to the country or vice versa. The Portland & Willamette Valley railway is a corporation authorized by the state, not for its own financial benefits exclusively, but for carrying out the wishes of the entire community and especially the majority, in the running of trains for the convenience of the public. And accordingly a requisition was made to us from various workingmen's societies and other citizens for the extension of our Sunday trains to Newberg, Dundee, Tualatin and other points along our line further distant than Oswego. In these circumstances we felt we could not refuse this request, and while we are anxious at all times to encourage the patrons along our line, especially the Society of Friends residing at Newberg, we, with all deference to you, feel we must carry out the same principle which you enunciate, "to do to others as we would that they should do to us." In other words, pursuant to your request, we have recently provided a special morning and evening passenger train for six days of the week for the convenience of the people of Newberg to get to and from Portland, and we hardly think it would be fair for us (pursuant to your remonstrance) in return to refuse the working classes of Portland the privilege of Sunday trains to visit Newberg or whatever other place they may select on our line, seeing it is the only day that they can enjoy the recreation of a visit to the country. In other cities this is done, and why not to and from Portland?

WILLIAM REID, Vice-President.

"A POOR RELATION."

That noted comedian, Sol Smith Russell, could not have chosen a happier title for a comedy than "A Poor Relation," which will be seen all next week at the New Park. Mr. Baines, of the San Francisco Call, says:

"Such opportunities as Mr. Russell affords for seeing thoroughly good acting come but seldom in this farce comedy period. See Russell and then confess, aside from his work, what rubbish one public are compelled to put up with in the name of histrionic art."

It is said that a number of theater parties will be formed to see Russell and his company next week.

The seats for this engagement will be put on sale this morning and there promises to be a lively demand, as this engagement will be the comedy event of the season.

BAKER COUNTY MINES.

Brief Description of Some of the Resources of This Section.

A Few of the Most Promising Prospects Pointed Out—A Semicircle of Mines With Baker City for the Center.

BAKER CITY, March 25.

Baker county is situated in the northeastern part of Oregon, being bounded on the east by Snake river, on the north by Union county, on the west by Grant county, on the south by Malheur county, and has an area of about [illegible] square miles.

Baker City, the county seat of Baker county, is beautifully situated in Powder river valley, on the line of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company's road, and has a population of [illegible] and is the liveliest city east of Portland in Oregon.

Our public schoolhouse is one of the best in the state, there being over [illegible] pupils in attendance at this writing.

Churches are represented here by the Baptists, Methodists, Catholics, Episcopalians and Presbyterians.

Surrounded by the greatest mineral belt in the Northwest, Baker City may truly be called the "city of destiny." It is the mining center of all Eastern Oregon—being surrounded on three sides by mineral deposits of good value. To enumerate the various ledges of gold and silver bearing quartz within a radius of seventy miles of Baker City, would take up too much space, but to point out a few of the most prominent prospects, upon which sufficient development has been done to be classified as "mines," shall be the aim of your correspondent.

The "Elkhorn" group, of which frequent mention has been made in THE OREGONIAN, is situated some twelve miles west of Baker. It has already paid handsome dividends to its fortunate stockholders, several Portland and Willamette Valley gentlemen being owners in the Elkhorn.

The Tom Paine and Big Alaska, situated in the same district, are very promising ledges. The former is owned by Portland parties and is being worked by a five-stamp mill. The latter is owned by a Boston syndicate, who contemplate the immediate erection of a mill. Following these deposits for a distance of twelve miles in a southerly direction we come to the justly celebrated Cracker creek mines, the Eureka and Excelsior, and the Columbia, already having been sufficiently developed to warrant the erection of a mill plant for the reduction of these ores. Part of the machinery has already arrived in Baker, awaiting shipment by wagon to the Eureka and Excelsior.

Tracing this same deposit south from the Cracker creek mines some six miles, we come to the united Cable Cove mines, where a number of ledges have been developed by tunnel and shaft, showing up fine bodies of ore. To the south of Cable Cove, almost five miles, we arrive at the Granite district, owned by Cabble Brothers & Co., upon whose property a concentrator has been in successful operation since last summer, and a great number of tons of valuable concentrates have been shipped to Denver for chlorination, yielding a handsome profit to the owners, notwithstanding the high rates of freight. A few miles beyond the Granite property is situated the Monumental mines and mill, owned and operated by an English company, a ten-stamp mill is already in operation upon this property, and two five-stamp batteries in addition are awaiting shipment from here to the Monumental, which means an additional ten stamps to their present capacity in the near future.

Still tracing this spur of the Blue mountains in a southeastern direction parallel with the Burnt River canyon to Snake river, we are in a vast mineral belt; thence crossing Burnt river and taking a northeasterly direction, we come to the Conner creek mines, owned by S. G. Reed, of Portland, which has been and still is a handsome paying property; this mine keeps thirty-five stamps busy night and day, and ore enough in sight for a 10 year run. Still tracing this same belt in a northerly direction for a distance of some thirty miles we arrive at the old placer camp of Sparta where $7,000,000 of the precious metal has been extracted from gulch diggings since early in the 60s. These placers are still successfully worked by Chinese. There are vast quartz deposits near Sparta, which no doubt will pay when properly developed. Thence northerly from Sparta about twelve miles the Sanger mines and mill are situated, owned and operated by the J. T. Bradley Mining Company of Minneapolis. Although Sanger is situated in Union county the company do most of their business in Baker. The C. F. B. M. Co. is the largest dividend-paying mine in Oregon; a ten-stamp mill has been in operation for the past two years and the mine is turning out bullion at the rate of from $25,000 to $30,000 per month, while their running expenses are less than $12,000 per month. Fourteen miles in a northeasterly direction from Sanger we come to the celebrated Pine creek mines, of which so much has been written and said and so little done in the way of development. Of the ultimate outcome of these mines there can be no doubt, as the gold is in the quartz, and the quartz is in the [illegible]. [illegible] Louisville, Ky., are the [illegible] actively operating [illegible] the mismanagement of their business by the first superintendent not only the company but the entire camp were placed at a great disadvantage before the "mining world" by injudicious and extravagant mining [illegible]. A gentleman of large mining experience is bringing the company out in good shape, and with the Red Jacket mine to supply good ore for their twenty stamp mill we have no doubt of the success of the C. G. M. Co.

We have great faith in the Pine creek mines and believe them to be the most extensive in the Northwest.

If the reader will trace with a pencil on paper the circuit described as the great mineral belt surrounding Baker City, bearing in mind the position which our city sustains to all these mines, he will readily see that we have described a semi-circle of which Baker City is the geographical center, these mines, when successfully worked, will all pay tribute to Baker, and nothing short of total annihilation of our mineral resources can prevent us from becoming the Denver of Oregon. Portland is not slow in seeing the future of this place, and capitalists are taking hold here with a knowledge and foresight worthy of business men who can see the future of a growing town. Here is a field for capital seldom equaled and not to be excelled in the Pacific Northwest.

In January and February there were twenty-one cases of suicide at Monte Carlo. There have been several cases this month. This season is considered the most prosperous in the history of the place. The winnings in February alone amounted to £160,000.

At the Lydecker court-martial Wednesday expert Sounder Sparrow and contractor Quackenbush testified in regard to the defects in the construction of the Washington aqueduct substantially to the same effect as what was brought out in the senate investigation.

President Harrison received his first month's salary Wednesday. It amounted to $[illegible], and was delivered to him in the form of a treasury draft and was for the month of March, minus the first three days. Cleveland received the president's salary for that portion of the month.

Attorney-General Miller said Wednesday, in answer to an inquiry, that he had not outlined any general plan of policy in regard to the marshal and district attorney of the District of Columbia, appointed by the last administration. So far as he was concerned, each case would be considered on its own merits. He did not look on partisanship as a very serious thing in itself, provided that the official was efficient and gentlemanly.

While there seems to be a slight difference between Senator Quay and Postmaster General Wanamaker, it is only on the surface and does not reach the heart. There is no doubt that Wanamaker has tendered the Philadelphia postoffice to his friend Field, who is not a politician, and whose conduct at the polls during the last few years is a matter of some doubt. While Quay tells people that he is going to insist upon W. R. Heads's appointment, he does not show any signs of rage or disappointment, and it is suspected that he has endorsed Heads simply for effect.

A SKIN GLOVE FIGHT.

"Dandy" Needham Whips Harry Gilmore in Twenty Rounds, Near Minneapolis.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 28.—A fight between Harry Gilmore and Dannie Needham was fought this morning, eight miles up the river, in a barn, beginning at 3:30 o'clock. From the start it was plain that while Gilmore was the more scientific, he lacked in the hard hitting qualities that finally gave Needham the fight in the twentieth round. Gilmore received a terrific thump in the neck and went down like a log. He managed to again face the victor, but down he went again from a vicious left hander in the throat. This time he was unable to rise until too late, and Needham won. It was a good fight, hard fought.

For the first ten rounds Needham did all of the leading, getting in most of the heavy blows, which were pretty well distributed over Gilmore's face, neck and body. Gilmore frequently countered, though less heavily. No dangerous work had been done so far, and no knock down had occurred, though each had been forced to the ropes.

In the eleventh round Gilmore did the first leading, and from that to the eighteenth pushed the fighting.

In the nineteenth round Needham began rushing, and there was a lively exchange. Gilmore acted on the defensive.

In the twentieth round he had two eyes in mourning, and was nearly winded. Dandy's right eye was badly swollen, but that was about all. He was in good condition. Needham forced the fighting from the start and rushed his man all around the ring. Finally his opportunity came. He landed on Gilmore's neck and the latter went to the floor. Just before time was called, Gilmore staggered to his feet, but was groggy and almost done for. Needham rushed at him savagely, knocking him flat in his own corner. Gilmore lay there fifteen seconds and the fight was awarded to Needham. Twenty sports were present at the fight, which was conducted in a very orderly manner. The fight was for a purse of $100 with skin gloves.

KILLED AND MAIMED.

Further Particulars of Tuesday's Fire in a Brooklyn Factory.

NEW YORK, March 27.—The Brooklyn factory fire was immediately followed by a heavy explosion and shock, and was attended by many casualties. It started in a four story brick building on Kent avenue, Brooklyn, about 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and inside of an hour the structure was a mass of ruins. The scene around the factory [illegible] description. Women after [illegible] and many men in [illegible] condition, were [illegible] from the roof of a small building at the rear. All were maimed, and one at least was fatally injured. Hundreds of people rushed from their dwellings and places of business. Many believed the accompanying shock to have been caused by an earthquake. The explosion had occurred on the first floor occupied by the Eureka Shoe Manufacturing Company. Forty-five hands were employed in the factory, and the greatest excitement ensued. All the ambulances and four patrol wagons were telegraphed for and hurried to the spot. The explosion occurred in the office of the shoe company but the cause could not be ascertained. Among the persons injured are an unknown man who died on the way to the hospital, Edith Boyle, James H. Rayner (a fireman), Sadie Smith, Lettie Lambert, Katie McLaughlin, William Armstrong, Henry Dond, John Harrigan, Ella Caffray, William Collins, Theodore Bauemenfeld, James Hart and Fred Axel.

UNION PACIFIC DIRECTORS.

They Decide Not to Resume the Payment of Dividends.

BOSTON, March 27.—A special meeting of the directors of the Union Pacific was held this morning. The draft of the annual report was submitted, and in connection with it the question of the resumption of dividends. It appeared that the company earned in 1888 about $2,400,000, which has been reduced about $800,000 through the failure of the St. Joseph & Grand Island railway, the Oregon Railway & Navigation, and the Central Branch to earn fixed charges, money to meet which the Union Pacific advanced. It was unanimously voted that under the existing railroad situation it was inexpedient to resume the payment of dividends. A draft of the report was then referred back to the executive committee to be perfected and submitted to the stockholders. Adjourned.

WHAT VESSEL WAS IT?

More Speculation Regarding That Mysterious Wreckage.

NEW YORK, March 27.—It is now generally believed that the steamer Conserva was sunk with all on board, though Henry Kuhnhard has a different theory. He believes that if the Conserva collided with another vessel she would not be cut in two, but that the other vessel would. He thinks the Conserva's boats were lowered to help the persons on the other vessel and abandoned on account of the heavy seas. He thinks that the white chairs and sofas found belonged to the Nantiooke, and not the Conserva, for the latter's furniture was painted in colors.

A REMARKABLE INCIDENT.

A Little Girl, While in Convulsions, Vomits Up a Lizard.

LOS ANGELES, March 27.—A little girl named Casey, of East Los Angeles, who has been sick some time, had convulsions this morning during which she vomited up a lizard three inches long. It is supposed that she swallowed the reptile while drinking at a spring.

A Farmer's Terrible Deed.

OMAHA, Neb., March 27.—John Rosenbarger, a farmer, shot dead A. Castahan, in a row over a trivial matter, near Creighton, yesterday. He then burned his own house to the ground and then shot himself dead.

A Strike Ended.

FALL RIVER, Mass., March 27.—The strike of the weavers ended this morning. The operatives will return to work on the old basis tomorrow, pending an appeal to the state board of arbitration.

Still No Choice.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 27.—The ballot for United States senator today resulted in no choice.

He Asked Freely.

Senator Mitchell, of Oregon, according to the Washington Post, recently received the following letter from one of his constituents:

Hon. J. H. Mitchell, Member Congress—Sir: Would you please go to the Patent office and send me the following list of seeds, as I am one of your constituents and would like to try the different kinds here in this climate and report my success as I like to try experiments and take a great deal of interest in such things and will test them thoroughly and report promptly, as that is the design in having the Patent office [illegible].

Onions—Red [illegible] and red Denvers and the other kinds that [illegible] to them.

Peas—Sugar [illegible] and all the early varieties early and late.

Corn all kinds, early and late.

Wheat, oats, barley, rye, buckwheat, all kinds that are different kinds [illegible].

Millet, Hungarian, sorghum, alfalfa, Clover, Red, White and Yellow.

All kinds of grasses.

Rutabaga all kinds early and late.

Cucumbers, squashes, [illegible] and any good kinds.

[illegible] pumpkin and other kinds of [illegible].

Sausage, lettuce, Rootabaga, white and yellow and any other kind that may be.

Beets, Mangel Wurzel, Long Red Beets, Turnip Beets and all kinds.

Carrots all kinds, Parsnips, Turnips, Radishes and everything else you want to send.

Friend Mitchell please attend to this as soon as you can possibly make it convenient and I will try and test everything and give it a fair trial and report my success to the Patent office promptly.

P. S. Send me some Havana tobacco seed and Ol. Virginia.

"We understand," says the Post, "that Senator Mitchell has turned the matter over to the Hon. Jeremiah Rusk with the recommendation that he take the patent office right out to Oregon, where it will be handy for the gentleman to make his report to it."

Cross Eyes Made Straight in One Minute By Dr. Darrin.

A Rheumatic Patient Made Happy.

Editor Oregonian: For four months past my wife has been seriously afflicted with rheumatism in her arm. For weeks at a time she never knew what it was to have a good night's sleep, and only from sheer exhaustion could she rest from the effects of pain. All my friends tried to persuade me not to go to Drs. Darrin because they advertised. I did go, however, and found to my surprise a man who possessed more skill and knowledge of her case than any I had applied to. His charges were reasonable and my wife is cured. Thanks to Drs. Darrin. Refer to me at 183 D street, Portland.

Mrs. M. Robes' son, 142 Water street, Portland.
Mr. E. Ahlf, 160 North Fourteenth street, Portland.
Miss Mary Walter, 331 Twelfth street, Portland.

The above are only a few names selected from a list of hundreds who have been successfully treated by Dr. Darrin. No charge is made unless the cure is perfect, and the treatment is almost painless.

Dr Darrin's Place of Business.

Drs. Darrin can be consulted free at 235 Fifth street, corner of Main, Portland. Office hours, from 10 to 4 o'clock daily; evenings, 7 to 8; Sundays, 10 to 12. All curable chronic diseases, loss of manhood, blood taints, syphilis, gleet, gonorrhoea, stricture, spermatorrhoea, seminal weakness or loss of desire of sexual power in man or woman, catarrh and deafness are confidentially and successfully treated. Cures of private diseases guaranteed and never published in the papers. Circulars sent free. Most cases can receive home treatment after a visit to the doctors' office.

Dr. Darrin so successful in treating cross-eyes, will be at the firm's office for a limited time, and will devote most of his attention to that specialty, as well as diseases peculiar to women, also club feet and other deformities.

The Oregonian.

PORTLAND, THURSDAY, MARCH 28.

EVASION OF TAXES.

During the long period of twenty years THE OREGONIAN has made continuous effort to bring about reform in our system of taxation. One year after another it has dwelt on the fact that our laws, had they been especially devised to enable unscrupulous men to evade taxation, could not have been more deftly framed. The root of the evil lies in deductions of indebtedness, in the silly and futile pursuit of credits and in undervaluations of actual property; and the fruit of it all is a most inequitable system—a system that cheats the revenues and makes the burdens of taxation most unequal and unjust.

Vain, however, has been the effort to induce the legislature to act. Members of that body, representing as they have alleged, but misrepresenting in fact, the interests of the smaller property holders, have refused to change the system—though notoriously it is a system under which the rich escape their just proportion of the burdens of government, and the poorer classes pay more than their just share. The notion is a fixed one in many minds that the effort to tax credits can be made to reach the property of the rich and compel them to pay—though it does not nor ever can; and hence the mad and fruitless pursuit of credits is one of the leading features of our system. Coupled with it is the scheme of undervaluation of tangible and visible property, and of deductions for indebtedness. The idea is that credits can be found and taxed, and, as the rich are the principal owners of credits, the object is to reach them; and a further part of the plan is to assess visible property far below its actual value, and to allow its owner to deduct from this meagre valuation the whole of his indebtedness. This was adopted and is adhered to under the supposition that it can be made to favor the poor and throw the burdens of taxation on the rich. But it is a most futile effort. The actual effect of it is precisely the reverse of the intention. It simply puts into the hands of the more wealthy classes the means of dodging and shirking taxation to a greater extent than the less wealthy possibly can.

An Eastern Oregon paper says: "It is openly stated by THE OREGONIAN that the wealthy men of the state, and especially of Portland, do not pay taxes on their property. That paper boldly proclaims that capitalists do not pay taxes on bonds, or on the money with which bonds are purchasable, and that therefore a law which exempts bonds from taxation can do no harm."

In these statements THE OREGONIAN simply declares facts that an intelligent judgment cannot blink. And the sooner these facts are recognized the better. Money, always easily concealed, is seldom returned for taxation; and this is as true of the farmer's tens or hundreds as of the capitalist's thousands. The effort to tax money therefore is almost wholly fruitless. Nevertheless, it is not proposed to exempt money from taxation, since the effort to tax it, though it brings almost nothing into the treasury, does not corrupt the revenue system. It is with the effort to tax credits that corruption of the system begins. But the credits are hidden away; they change into protean forms that elude all pursuit and baffle discovery. Yet in the hope of taxing credits at their full or nominal value tangible property, as lands and houses, are undervalued, and full deductions for debts are allowed from these undervaluations. What is the result? The wealthy and well-to-do classes, whose resources enable them to "work" the system for their own benefit, get their debts into a form that enables them to cancel the tax on three to five dollars worth of actual property with one dollar of indebtedness, while their investments in bonds or other securities are so managed that the taxgatherer scarcely ever can reach them. It is entirely true that men will "neither pay taxes on bonds nor on the money with which they are purchasable." Nor can the ingenuity of law-makers devise ways to compel them.

Our system, therefore, though devised for the small property holder and maintained for his supposed benefit, actually oppresses him and favors the more wealthy class. Never was there a greater mistake than the effort to tax credits, coupled with deductions for indebtedness and undervaluation of visible property, as a means or method of making the more wealthy classes pay their full proportion of the taxes. These classes at once take advantage of the system and turn it to their own account. Were they asked to formulate a plan that would enable them to evade taxation to the fullest extent, they could not possibly prepare one more effective than this which has been made to their hand, under the mistaken notion that it is for the advantage and protection of those whose property is limited and whose capital is mainly their labor.

The nearest approach that could be made to an equitable system would be to abandon the effort to tax credits and to refuse all deductions for indebtedness. Then main incentives to undervaluation would be removed; and when a full valuation of tangible and visible property was reached, with no deductions or abatements, it would be amazing to note how vastly the proportion of the taxes paid by the more wealthy classes would swell. And this might just as well be done, since the credits, except in insignificant proportions, are not reached under the present system, nor ever can be under any system. There is no answer in mere declamation against the injustice of exempting credits from tax; for, even when they are not exempted by law they are mostly exempt in fact, and the effort to tax them, with the corresponding deduction for debt, corrupts our whole system of assessment and taxation, makes it most unequal, and gives to wealth, which is master of both debts and credits, the opportunity it is not slow to use. The representatives of the people could change this if they would; but they refuse to see that the present system, in theory devised for full taxation of all property and adequate protection of the poor, in practice enables the rich to avoid taxation, while the poor, lacking means to take advantage of it, are compelled to bear more than their proportion of the burdens. So it will always be till the whole system is cut up by the roots; till the effort to tax credits is abandoned or greatly modified, and till deductions for indebtedness are no longer allowed. Then undervaluation, that has its foundation in an effort to shift taxes from visible property to credits, will no longer be so great an abuse.

Colored people of the F. F. of V., are in a state of excitement bordering on anarchy. Mrs. Harrison has found it convenient to change her servants, and in so doing has dismissed colored people from her service, and the colored people of Richmond are wild with apprehension. They see in this ordinary domestic procedure a menace to the liberties of the race—a disposition, indeed, on the part of the republican party to return the negro to slavery. Such a ridiculous state of alarm would hardly be excusable in people whom the proclamation of a republican president made free more than a quarter of a century ago; but for the fact that the tyranny of custom and the continued arrogance of those who so long held them in absolute bondage, have followed them during all of these years with the shadow of a menace that they have not been able to overcome.

The appointment of Hon. Robert Lincoln as minister to England revives the old remarks concerning the "sons of their fathers" which are indulged every time a man bearing an honored name in national history is delegated to an important public service. THE OREGONIAN does not believe the appointment of Fred Grant to the Austrian mission to have been wise and well considered, since the young man has little except the honored name that he bears to recommend him. As to Robert Lincoln, he has been a fairly successful man in his profession, as well as in political life. As secretary of war under Arthur he commanded honor and respect at home and abroad. As a diplomat he is still untried. The mission that has been given him will gauge his capacity in this line of governmental service, and win for him additional honor, or sink him into obscurity.

Newspapers in 1889.

From the edition of George P. Rowell & Co's "American Newspaper Directory," published [illegible] it appears that the newspapers and periodicals of all kinds issued in the United States and Canada now number 17,107, showing a gain of 797 during the last twelve months, and of 7442 in ten years.

ELECTRIC MOTOR LINE.

$1000—37x170 feet near Corbett.
1700—60x170 feet, Third ave., near Corbett.
2000—80x170 feet, Corbett.
2500—60x170 feet, South Front, street improved.
2625—60x170 feet, South Front, street improved.
5000—120x170 feet, South Front street improved.

Among the above are rare residence gems, having a long and gentle slope toward the East; the front elevated 3 feet above the street; the magnificent panorama of river, cultivated fields, forests and snow-capped mountains stretching out beyond the city; these lots possess a charm that impresses the beholder at once.
These lots have splendid drainage.
These lots are elevated; view permanent.
These lots laugh at malaria; none there.
These lots are near Electric Motor Line.
These lots are pretty and more desirable for residence than lots nearer in that are sold at four times the price asked for these. What more shall we say?

PORTLAND AND VICINITY.

EULOGISTIC OF THE C. B. OF C.—"This is one of the best institutions ever opened in this city," said a laboring man in the office of the City Board of Charities yesterday afternoon. Several other men also looking for work, were sitting in the room and to these he addressed his conversation. "Yes, sir, I mean just what I say," he continued. "Here honest laborers can get work without going to an employment agency and running the chance of being swindled. Often men, who are anxious to work, have not the necessary $1 or $2 fee to give the employment agent, and what are they to do? Work they must have. Even where they have a few dollars they do not feel like giving them their last cent for the opportunity to work. This is also a great thing for people who want to hire work. The secretary ascertains the capabilities and character of every applicant, and when an employer gets help here, he knows just exactly what kind of a man he is getting. After this establishment is longer in existence and consequently better advertised I will venture to say that three clerks will hardly be able to do all the work. Business men wanting help will come direct to this office." He then told of several instances where he had thrown money away in employment offices, and, using these as an argument he concluded by saying that no money could be lost with the C. B. of C. for no money is required either from the employer or applicant.

LOVE'S LABOR LOST.—There is a woman in the north end of the city for whom the men engaged in cleaning the streets have learned to entertain a wholesome fear. They had done a good job in cleaning up the street in front of her residence, and the dirt was swept up into neat little piles, when this particular woman came rushing out of the house and in very short order began to wage war on the dirt piles. "Vhat you doing mit my shtreed?" she said. "Dish ish my shtreed. Gettin' you out a here." The men stood aside while she deliberately laid the neat little mounds in ruins. The dirt was scattered about as effectually as if a mild little cyclone had been prancing about. The men did not repair the damage but were evidently glad that the woman's name is not legion, for were there many more like her it would take a large street cleaning brigade to keep the public highways in shape.

WELL PLEASED.—About two months since a gentleman named Crabs arrived in Portland in search of health. He is a native of Ohio and carried on the drug trade in Mansfield in that state, for more than twenty years. He left there about three years ago to recuperate, and since that time has visited many portions of the United States, particularly Utah, Colorado and California without much improvement. Here he finds a climate that just suits him. He has gained over sixteen pounds in weight since his arrival and has taken a new lease of life, notwithstanding he is many years beyond middle age. He is so well satisfied with the climate of Portland and surroundings generally that he will stay here a year, and probably become a permanent resident and be the means of inducing a number of acquaintances to remove hither.

DID HE SHIP?—A boy named Charles Murphy, who is either an orphan or has no parents that any one knows of, who has been working in Plympton's logging camp, at Westport, has wanted to go to sea for some time, says the Astoria Pioneer. Last Sunday he saw the Willamette Chief towing the City of Canton to Astoria and told several of his playmates that he was going to get aboard of her and go to sea. Accordingly he jumped into a skiff without any coat or hat and started to pull out to catch the ship. Since that time nothing has been heard of the boy or the skiff. The owners of the skiff are more anxious for its return than they are for the boy. There is a possibility that the boy was drowned, but where is the skiff?

THE HOSPITAL BENEFIT.—Upon every occasion of battalion drill and ceremony of the First Regiment, the armory is crowded with interested spectators, free admission being given to all proper persons. The regiment has decided to give an exhibition drill and review on Friday night, and charge an admission fee of 50 cents for each person, the total proceeds to be donated in equal shares to the St. Vincent's, Good Samaritan and Portland hospitals. The many friends of the regiment will be glad to assist in it, thus aiding these worthy charities, and will no doubt attend in greater numbers for that purpose than they did when the admission was free. Tickets can be had from members of the regiment and at the door. Battalion will form at 8 o'clock.

T. B. TERRY SAYS IT IS PERFECT. Farmers' Institute, Hudson, Ohio, writes to Hallet & Davis: "The upright piano which you kindly advised us to take and selected for us has come to hand in perfect order. In finish and beauty of workmanship it is better than we expected from our catalogue. In tone it is simply superb, the equal of any grand we ever heard. After looking over the interior workmanship we would not consider your five years' warrant at all necessary. As the writer did his boyish pounding on one of your instruments thirty-five years ago that is still a first class piano, although rather out of date to look at." These pianos sold at Eastern prices for cash or installments at Chicago Music House, 201 First street.

HE WAS MELICANIZED.—A stranger walking along Sixth street yesterday afternoon was amused to see a Chinaman lift his hat to a white lady, whom he (the Chinaman) recognized across the street. This act of courtesy was performed in creditable style by the celestial, who at most could not be considered a very accomplished Chesterfield. If anything, the act was a little overdone, for the Chinaman raised his headgear to an extreme hight and bowed profusely. Further than this he smole a persistent smile that did not leave him until he had gone several blocks. "Wonder what these heathens will be up to next," soliloquized the stranger, and then walked on.

REINSTATED.—Advices from Washington state that the four postal agents who were removed last fall by the Cleveland administration because they were republicans and members of the Grand Army organization, were reinstated yesterday. The names of the men are W. W. Wetzler, George M. Fawcett, C. J. Holloway and N. S. Pierce. They are all men of experience and discharged their duties in the postal service to the entire satisfaction of the public, and were removed only because they did not join in hurrahing incense to the late Confederate administration. Their removal was a partisan outrage, and their restoration is a matter of right and justice.

ABREAST OF THE TIMES.—Chief Engineer Harry Morgan informed an OREGONIAN reporter last evening that in about two weeks he would place another horse on duty in No. 1 hook and ladder house. The truck is too heavy for two horses to pull up the grades of some of the streets. Chief Morgan says that three horses hitched abreast can do as much work as four would do with the truck. The large Eastern fire companies are all working three horses on their trucks. As soon as the gear necessary for the change arrives from the East (it has been ordered) the new plan will be put in operation.

NO POLICE COURT YESTERDAY.—Owing to the absence of Judge Tanner, who left the city to attend the supreme court ... the ... session of the police court ... He will return in time for the opening of court to-day. With the exception of the crazy man ... was taken ... about ... past ... no important arrests had been made up to ... o'clock midnight. The usual drunks manage to come in at all hours of the day, but even of these offenders the number placed on the register during the past 24 hours is very small.

CONSULTED AND LEVELED.—The owners of a large portion of the slopes of Mount Tabor have agreed to have their property surveyed ... by experienced engineers so as to ... the best results as a whole. The result will be the leveling of the property ... of villa lots along picturesque ... The graders are well under way with the ... roadway which is ... the ... mount to its ... Plans are being prepared for the hotel and for supplying water to the whole butte.

A HALF PEANUT FANCY.—According ... two enterprising ... of this town have gone down to preempt ... island and start a peanut ranch, they having learned that ... island ... will ... excellent peanuts. They will probably make enough to enable them to retire from business in a year or two. If they do not, the island will retire itself and in ocean's depths be buried as soon as the United States engineers have extended the jetty another mile or so and then it will be good bye peanuts.

BIDS FOR A TWO-STORY BUILDING.—Bids for a two-story frame building, having a store on the ground floor and dwelling apartments in the second story, were opened at the office of ... architect, yesterday. The building will be put up for Michael Tracy, on the southwest corner of Fifth and I streets and is to cost $... The lowest bids were as follows: J. Marshall ... carpenter work, $154; Charles ... brick work and plaster, $160; John Donnerberg, plumbing, $180; Green Bros., painting, $18.

THE CITY AT ALBINA.—Albina is of late coming to the front ... literary and social attractions ... as a field for real estate investment. The ... course of lectures now in progress as something new for this promising suburb of our city. The next thing in order is a Martha Washington tea party got up by the ladies' Social Union at the new M. E. church for Friday evening, March ... The ladies propose to make this a grand social ... fair for old residents and new comers. The whole community is invited.

FROM THE OLD FILES.—The following is quoted from THE OREGONIAN of December ..., 185...: "In a recent visit to Vancouver we noticed Colonel ..., Captain R. Ingalls, Captain Grant and other officers of the U. S. A. ... sleigh ride. We have seen horses and sleighs than those used by the above named gentlemen, but the horses cannot be beat anywhere, and as to the ... he was not Jehu himself he must have been a lineal descendant."

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.—Judge Deady will deliver an opinion in this court this morning in the case of the ship Imperial.

$10 will take one of those handsome spring suits at Steinbach's.

HE LOST HIS BEARINGS.—About half past 1 this morning Daniel Cronk, who is employed at B. B. Franklin's on Third street, says the Astorian, went out the back way to go home. He got his bearings slightly miscalculated and walked overboard. Fortunately it was not high tide and the water was not deep enough to drown him immediately and his loud cries for help soon attracted a crowd who landed him in safety, but in a sorry looking plight.

IN NO MANNER CONNECTED.—Mr. R. S. Perkins, proprietor of the Holton house, wishes it understood that the Charles S. Perkins, who is now under indictment for felonious assault, is in no manner connected with his house. The mention of the latter's name in the court proceedings in conjunction with Al Cody, who is also under indictment for the crime of mayhem, might create a wrong impression.

LUMBER FOR THE SMELTER.—Messrs. Bunker and Bellover yesterday made arrangements with the Dunway Lumber Company for lumber for the smelting works they propose to erect below the city. There is a brick yard near by which will probably furnish brick. The railroad switch will deliver ore in a position where all future movements of it will be done by gravity.

Y. M. C. A. WORKERS WILL DELIBERATE.—All active Y. M. C. A. workers will meet in the lecture room of the association this evening to discuss the feasibility of inaugurating Wednesday night meetings. Other projects for stimulating the activity of members and increasing the interest in the work will be considered, and a large attendance is desired.

LIFE SAVING STATION.—Specifications and drawings for a dwelling and boathouse for a life-saving station at Point Adams have been received by Collector of Customs Abraham. Bids for the work will soon be advertised for. The buildings will be precisely the same as those at Point Reyes, Cal., and will cost about $7000. They will be located near Fort Stevens.

FINISH EXAMINATIONS TO-DAY.—The classes in the medical department of the Willamette University were examined in physiology yesterday and to-day take an examination in diseases of women, which will complete the term examinations. There are twelve students in the graduating class. Commencement exercises will be held Monday, April 1.

COMPLYING WITH THE LAW.—The Willamette Iron Bridge Company yesterday filed a sworn statement of the company's business, as required by law, with the clerk of the county court. The statement gives the monthly report of the expenses and earnings during the eighteen months from April, 1887, to September, 1888, inclusive.

A MEAN TRICK.—Some unscrupulous boys, either through thoughtlessness or wanton meanness disfigured a newly painted sign left in front of E. J. Pierce's boot-blacking stand on First street Friday night, by scratching off the paint and defacing it generally. No clue to the identity of the unprincipled vandals could be obtained.

PLEASANT SOCIAL.—There was a gathering of young people in the parlors of the Taylor-street M. E. church last evening. The occasion was a social given by the young people of the church. The entertainment was as usual, a success, and those who attended it were well satisfied with their evening's enjoyment.

BARGAINS TO-DAY.—Let no one forget that the Columbia Investment Company will offer some very choice city and suburban property at auction at 2 o'clock to-day at I. J. O'Connor's auction room, No. 1.. First street. See their ad. under new to-day.

A QUARTZ MINER HERE.—Mr. J. K. Clarke, one of the extensive quartz miners of Butte, is in the city with his wife on a visit. They are at the Gilman. Mr. Clarke has mining interests in the Coeur d'Alene and Okanogan mining districts.

ROCKWELL'S LATEST.—The elegant marine painting, "Off the Straits of Fuca," by Cleveland Rockwell, will be on exhibition at the art rooms of the Oregon Picture Frame Company, 1.. Third street, Abington block, from to-day.

OFFICE BURNED.—The office of the Pacific Express Company in the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company's warehouse at Endicott, W. T., was burned about 10 o'clock Tuesday night. No particulars have been received.

TO-DAY and to-morrow Mrs. H. H. Hildebrand will exhibit a choice selection of ... bonnets. Latest importation. Ladies of Portland and vicinity invited. 118 Washington street, New Park theater building.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Portland Rowing Association will be held at the Ainsworth National bank Monday at 8 P. M. sharp. Members are requested to attend. J. F. Marshall, secretary.

AN ALLEGED WIFE BEATER.—Patrick Gleason was yesterday arrested by Constable Sam Simmons on complaint of his wife, who charges him with beating and threatening to kill her.

RIBBON SALE.—The display of all silk ribbons at quarter prices at J. Selling & Co.'s will no doubt induce those needing ribbons to lay in a supply. Sash ribbons, .. and 50 cents.

CHILDREN'S SASHES.—The latest Fauntleroy sashes at Kohn's, also new lines of children's kilt and knee pant suits just opened at Kohn's, corner Second and Morrison.

The Oregonian.

PORTLAND, THURSDAY, MARCH 28.

JOHN BRIGHT.

The life of John Bright was so completely despaired of many weeks since that The Oregonian published a full account of his glorious career, which beginning with his eloquent and triumphant agitation for the repeal of the corn laws and the acceptance of free trade by Peel, ended substantially with his support of Gladstone's famous anti-Turkish campaign against Beaconsfield in 1876. Bright nominally supported Gladstone's ministry from 1880 to 1886, but sickness had so reduced his strength and embittered his spirit that he was no longer the orator who almost alone had pleaded the cause of American union from 1861 to 1865 and subsequently labored from 1868 to 1874 in support of Gladstone's glorious reform administration which disestablished the Irish church.

After 1876, in consequence of broken health, Bright was a phantom of his former self and when Gladstone declared for Parnell and home rule in 1886 Bright, who had been his lifelong friend, deserted the liberal colors under which he had won his best fame, and in his feeble and failing old age joined the tory party of Salisbury, Balfour, Hartington and Chamberlain. The last years of Mr. Bright are like the last years of Webster, years of weakness rather than wisdom, years of shame compared with the glory of his manly prime. America, however, never can forget that this great Englishman was our friend in sunshine and in storm during our civil war, at a time when even so clear and [illegible] as that of Cobden at first leaned for a time toward the South and Gladstone was an outspoken admirer of Jeff Davis as "a man who had founded an empire." But Bright, according to the testimony of the recently published letters of Motley, was from first to last the inflexible, enthusiastic, indomitable, unterrified advocate of the cause of the Union. Cobden once attacked something which Motley had published in the London newspapers in favor of the Northern cause, and Bright thereupon wrote Motley as follows:

> I thought that my lamented friend, Mr. Cobden, was rather severe upon you, and I told him afterward that I thought his argument was hardly fair. He was so much shocked at the war that he seemed ready for any sacrifice to put an end to it, and he had no confidence in the statesmen whom the republican party had raised to office. But he always insisted upon this, that an attempt to build up a new state on the foundation of human bondage would not succeed in our age of the world. He watched the course of the war with intense interest, and, strange to say, his eyes closed in death on the very day on which Richmond fell.

A man of Quaker blood and breeding, Bright hated war, and denounced every war in which England has been engaged in this century, but in a speech before the peace society of London a few years ago he made an exception in favor of our war as follows:

> Give me a particular war, and the only war it would be difficult to answer about would be the slavery war of America. That war appears to have been a great punishment of that nation for a century of crime in maintaining the horrors of slavery within their borders. But in that case they were attacked by a rebellious conspiracy, and their forts were attacked. They were first attacked, they resisted, and they knew very soon what they were fighting for, and then accomplished what they fought for. The whole thing is one of those great transactions which I should be unwilling to take part in or severely to judge; but, at any rate, it is not like the struggles in which we have engaged, at all ends of the earth almost.

In illustration of Bright's power of statement it would be easy to make many [illegible] and quotations from his speeches. When he pronounced the eulogy of his distinguished Cobden, he said of the great fight for the repeal of the corn laws in 1845-46: "Famine itself, against which we had warred, joined us," referring to the potato rot of 1845 in Ireland which, producing a famine, forced Peel's hand and persuaded him to repeal the corn laws and declare for free trade.

It is a curious fact that Bright, who came of sturdy, abstemious stock, and had a fine strong, athletic Saxon physique, broke down in health shortly after his great oratorical efforts against the Crimean war of 1854-56, and for several years was in retirement, and broke down a second time about eighteen years ago, since when he has been a chronic invalid. The explanation of his premature decay, for he is not as old as Gladstone by two years, must lie in his indifference to the necessity of exercise. A few years ago Bright, in conversation, declared that his besetting sin was his natural mental and physical sluggishness. He declared that nothing but his moral sense of duty and responsibility have kept him from lying abed late and reading what amused him. He hated work of the drudging kind; he used no wine or spirits or tobacco; his diet was simple; he had no social vices of any sort, but he hated physical exertion, and probably, having a large, sturdy physique, he did not take exercise enough to digest his food. Gladstone, with a far less imposing physique, has from youth up been instinct with nervous energy; he has exercised daily, eaten a generous diet of beef and claret, and to-day he is 80 years of age, is hale and hearty, while abstemious Bright is dead. It only shows that something besides abstinence is necessary to longevity. Vigorous exercise and cheerful companionship have as much to do with length of days and health as total abstinence. If Bright had been able to overcome his constitutional indolence and taken the regular physical exercise practiced by Gladstone he would have lived probably as long and happily as his one-time illustrious friend and compatriot.

THE JESUITS IN CANADA.

Our dispatches yesterday announced a sharp debate in the Canadian house of commons over a resolution addressed to the governor general urging him to disallow the so-called Jesuit act passed by the legislature of Quebec, granting $400,000 in final settlement of all claims of the Jesuits in Canada to restitution or indemnity for their estates from the government. The history of this so-called claim is so interesting that it is worth reciting in full.

When Canada was ceded to Great Britain after 1763 the Jesuits, who had a splendid college in the city of Quebec, and to whom the kings of France had granted a vast region of forest land, had already been suppressed in France by the civil power, and their society was proscribed as illegal throughout the British empire. The British government, however, with a rare and admirable wisdom for those times, expressed its appreciation of the great services rendered to Canadian civilization by the Jesuits, by leaving them in possession of their houses and revenues, only on the condition, however, that they should not recruit their number, and that when the last member of the order then living in the colony should have died, all their houses and property should become the property of the government. The liberality of the British government went so far that when Pope Clement XIV issued his decree suppressing the Jesuit order, the British government forbade its publication in Canada, just as the decree of Louis XV. of France against the Jesuits had been ignored in 1763. This was wisdom on the part of the British government that sought in this way to attach their French colonists to British rule; so the Jesuits were undisturbed in Canada.

This is a very interesting fact, and highly creditable to the statesmanship of the British government of that day. The curious thing is that a government, wise enough to see that religious and political proscription and persecution of their Roman Catholic colonists would be disastrous in Canada, was not wise enough to deal with their Roman Catholic subjects in Ireland on equally generous terms. Had Great Britain, beginning with 1763, treated her French colonists in Canada as she treated her Roman Catholic subjects in Ireland, she would have utterly alienated Canada and made her so ripe for rebellion that on the outbreak of the American revolution, Canada, under the lead of an offended and insulted priesthood, would have risen in insurrection, and would surely have fallen into the hands of the American colonies. Arnold and Montgomery would have had an easy march to Montreal and Quebec, for all the French colonists would have welcomed them with both hands. But the liberal policy of the British government towards the Jesuits attached the priesthood and the people to the British flag; so that when the American revolt broke out in 1775, only fifteen years after the conquest of Canada, the Canadians were all so intensely loyal to the crown that they joined its armies and fought bravely under Burgoyne for their new master, King George.

The statesmanship of Chatham, which, by this admirable policy of toleration, captured the Jesuit priests, and through them all the French colonists in Canada, ought to have been applied to Ireland, where four-fifths of the people are Catholics; and had it been, Ireland would be as fervently loyal as Canada. But George the Third hated and distrusted Ireland, and neither the elder nor the younger Pitt could ever persuade him to favor Catholic emancipation.

Under the papal decree against the Jesuits the holy see had transferred to the existing bishop of Quebec and his successors the right to the property of the order, leaving it to the priesthood to make the best terms they could with the local government regarding the Jesuit estates and their revenues. Bishop Hubert, when the last Jesuit priest had expired, conferred holy orders on Brother Cazot, the sole surviving member of the Quebec Jesuit community, and there was no interference on the part of the colonial authorities, because they did not wish to offend the Roman Catholic priesthood and their flock, the French Canadians. Father Cazot, until his death in 1800, disposed of all the revenues of those forfeited estates in works of charity and public utility. Then the government established a special administration for "the Jesuits' estates," devoting their revenue to educational purposes. This situation remained unchanged until [illegible], when the Jesuits returned to Canada. They built a college in Montreal, which was chartered afterward by the legislature, and ultimately the Jesuits were admitted to all the privileges of citizenship. Then the Jesuits began to press their claim for the restoration of their estates. There really does not seem to have been any very strong foundation in law or equity for the pressure of this claim, since the Jesuits' work in the field of missionary labor and in that of education had been taken up and continued by the Canadian clergy, who for more than a century had well done the work the Jesuits could not do, because of their suppression by the ecclesiastical power of the pope, working hand in hand with the civil power of Europe. In equity therefore the full claim of the Jesuits was resisted. The local government of the province of Quebec, in which the Jesuit estates were situated, proposed to grant as an indemnity in lieu of all claims the sum of $400,000 and the present pope, Leo XIII., was named as the arbitrator for a just and equitable distribution of this sum in final settlement of claims to the Jesuit estates in Canada. The pope has pronounced his decision, under which the Jesuits get $160,000, together with valuable landed property at Laprairie. The seminary of Quebec, which had taken up the apostleship of secular education, on the legal extinction of the Jesuits in [illegible], gets $140,000, $100,000 of which go to Laval University, created and maintained by the seminary at its sole expense, and $40,000 to the succursal of Laval University, established in Montreal. The Canadian missions are not forgotten, $20,000 being granted to the missions of Labrador and the northern shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The eight dioceses of the province of Quebec get, each, $10,000.

This statement of facts concerning this "Jesuit legislation," that is the apple of discord for the moment in the Canadian parliament, is, we believe, correct, as it is drawn from an intelligent Roman Catholic account of the whole controversy, furnished to the New York Sun by its European correspondent, Bernard O'Reilly.

THE ABANDONMENT OF INFANTS.

There is a bill before the legislature of Minnesota, the object of which is to prevent, so far as dread of penalty will do this, the abandonment of infants, and to protect helpless waifs from what the St. Paul Globe terms "the horrors of the baby farm." That journal cites the force that the law "covers with its broad mantle the adult and shadows the steps of the minor, but hitherto its folds have given scant shelter to the helpless babe."

The bill is drawn with special reference to the care of children under 3 years of age. The penalty proposed for the willful abandonment of an infant varies from a fine of $100 to $800, or imprisonment in the county jail from one to two years, or both, at the discretion of the court, and according to the more or less flagrant features of the offense.

There is no doubt about the justice of such a law or the humanity that inspired it. Though it proposes to deal with the matter of the abandonment of infants as a misdemeanor merely, such abandonment has in it in reality, the elements of a cold blooded and heartless crime, far exceeding in magnitude many for which much more severe punishment is devised. The single statement of such a case, followed by proof of the charge, will probably in most instances be sufficient to secure conviction and insure speedy penalty. There is a doubt, of course, as to the efficacy of law in such a case, as the cruel and heartless act of abandonment is usually done in a corner, the only witness the dumb and helpless little victim of parental cruelty, and selfishness and crime. But it will speak well for the representatives of the people of a great state if they make an honest effort to bring irresponsible parents and heartless custodians of infants, who deliberately abandon them, to punishment. The law is one that public sentiment will fully endorse, since, with the exception of the comparative few, who seek to throw the burden of their shame or the consequences of their ill-considered acts upon others, everyone will applaud the justice of the intent that seeks to awaken pity for the most helpless of all living creatures and to compass for them kindness, shelter and the care of those directly responsible for their untoward existence. The evil at which the proposed law aims is a common and growing one, and while there is no hope of its eradication, it may be possible to put a check upon it through the agency of penalty, the dread of which is the coward's nightmare.

A dispatch from Olympia tells of the arrest of a man who does Yamhill county in this state the discredit of claiming it as his home on the charge of committing a criminal assault upon a little girl who was out gathering wild flowers. To the infinite discredit of the justice before whom he was examined on the vile charge the inhuman monster was released, although he did not deny a portion at least of the child's story. There is occasionally a case wherein the use of the shotgun, supplementary to the release of a criminal without punishment, would be silently if not audibly applauded in a community.

GRAY'S HARBOR.

A Deep Sea Terminus for Transcontinental Roads

Montesano the Coming City of This Section—All the Elements of Wealth and Prosperity Are There in Profusion.

The only money ever appropriated by the government for the improvement of Gray's harbor was $1,500, which was expended last summer in removing stumps and snags out of the Chehalis river, fully thirty miles above the head of navigation. That it is one of the safest and best harbors on the coast is proven by the infrequency of wrecks on its bar or near it, notwithstanding the fact that absolutely nothing has been done towards improving it. Up to the present there has not even been a lighthouse at its entrance, although at the last session of congress an appropriation for that purpose was made, and it is expected that one will be erected before fall. On the outer bar there are twenty-two feet of water at low tide, with a tide of from ten to twelve feet. There are but few ocean-going vessels which cannot cross it with perfect safety. There are but two or three shoal places, which the expenditure of but a trifling sum will remove, to prevent any vessel from crossing the outer bar and reaching Montesano. As it is, all the passenger steamers from Portland, San Francisco and other points make Montesano their terminus, and it is a common thing for vessels to load with lumber and other products at its wharves. [illegible]

The extreme [illegible] location of Gray's harbor, it being more than three hundred miles nearer San Francisco than any other northern harbor, than any port on Puget sound, cannot but have the effect of making it the terminus of several transcontinental lines of railroad, and the city which secures those roads will undoubtedly become a great commercial center. As Montesano is situated at the head of navigation, yet within convenient reach of the ocean, and besides contains all the other advantages, it is but fair to suppose [illegible] will be the city.

No better illustration of the rapid growth of northwestern cities could be found probably than Montesano. In 1881, less than one hundred people lived within its incorporation. Along both sides of what is now Main street extended a "worm" rail fence. The town for more than a year after that had but three mails a week, the mail for the whole route, from Olympia, being carried in a saddlebag on horseback. Although now enjoying a daily mail, the average weight of the matter received will run from six hundred to one thousand pounds per day; certainly a very creditable amount for a city of 1500 inhabitants, and speaking very highly for their intelligence. The school population has grown so rapidly that although the large and handsome school building was not nearly filled at the time of its erection two years ago, it is now entirely inadequate to provide room for all the pupils who apply for it, consequently its duplicate will be built in the western part of town this summer, and in addition a handsome central high school building is talked of.

For morality there is probably not a city nor a county in the United States which will excel Montesano or Chehalis county. The vote cast in Chehalis county at the presidential election last fall exceeded 1400, indicating a population of upwards of 7000, yet never in her history has a murder been committed, while the dockets at her criminal courts are always very light.

If you were to ask any one of Montesano's 1500 inhabitants which was the most promising point in Washington territory, the answer would undoubtedly be Montesano, and after spending two or three days in their enterprising city and listening to the many reasons advanced by them for their belief, the unprejudiced visitor cannot but admit that a large part of the confidence felt by them is justified.

Situated at the head of navigation of the Chehalis river, thirty miles from the ocean, Montesano certainly combines in a large degree all the elements which usually go toward making a large city. For variety and extent of resources there is probably no town in Western Washington which surpasses her.

The town is beautifully situated at the narrowest part of the Chehalis valley, close to where the Wynooche joins the Chehalis. Additions are already platted which reach nearly to the Wynooche, and at the present rate of growth it will be a question of but a short time before a water frontage on both streams is secured. The gradual slope of the land on which it is laid out insures perfect drainage, while that, combined with the salt breezes which sweep up from the ocean, renders it peculiarly healthful, malaria being unknown.

Among the improvements contemplated which will soon be secured is a complete system of waterworks. Sylvia creek, a stream of pure spring water rising in the Olympic mountains and running in a southerly direction, joins the Wynooche a short distance from town. At a distance of about a mile and a half, an almost perpendicular fall of upwards of seventy feet is sustained. Above these falls is a natural lake covering about five acres. The intention is to lay a five-inch main from the lake to the city, which is to be piped thoroughly. The altitude of the lake is so great that it is estimated that enough pressure will be obtained to force water over the highest building ever likely to be erected. It is proposed to utilize the waterpower of the falls to operate an electric light plant for the city, in addition to which it is estimated that enough power can be obtained to run all the machinery ever likely to be used in a manufacturing city of 50,000 inhabitants.

One of the questions which is of vital importance to the intending settlers is that pertaining to the religious and educational facilities. In both these respects Montesano cannot be excelled by any other town in the territory. Three church societies, Presbyterian, Methodist and Christian are regularly organized, with resident pastors and hold services each week. In addition to the graded public school, which is a handsome and commodious building, and is conducted by an efficient corps of teachers, the Chehalis Valley academy, an institution operated under the auspices of the Presbyterian church, is in operation and has a large attendance.

The general business interests of the city are represented by stores of every description, all having a prosperous trade. There are four hotels in town, all of them commodious buildings and conducted in an excellent manner, but as the population of the city increases and the number of tourists and others arriving becomes greater, the need of another hotel is becoming felt and the question of the erection of a handsome brick building to be used for that purpose is being discussed with the probability that it will be completed this season.

In the manufacturing line there are now in the city two saw mills with a daily capacity of 30,000 feet, one furniture factory, one harness and saddle factory and one wagon factory. The machinery to operate an extensive brick yard is now on the ground and will be put in position at once so as to supply the rapidly increasing demand for that article.

As the present rapid growth of Montesano is not due to any particular advertisement of its advantages, nothing of the kind having been done, but is composed of people who, attracted by its apparently favorable location, have come to investigate, and, being satisfied, have settled down, it may not be out of place to consider here of what those advantages consist.

In the first place Chehalis county, of which Montesano is the county seat, possesses an advantage over most other counties of the Northwest in the matter of climate for this reason: It is bounded on the west by the Pacific ocean, on the south by a high range of hills separating it from Pacific county, on the east by the Cascade range of mountains and on the north by the Black hills. Thus a natural basin is formed into which the warm Japan current, by means of Gray's harbor, after skirting the county on the west, penetrates almost to the center, causing a more equable temperature than is to be had in almost any other section.

Look at a map of Chehalis county and you will see that reaching out in different directions with Montesano as a common center, are the valleys of the Chehalis, Satsop and Wynooche rivers, containing immense bodies of the finest agricultural lands west of the mountains. These valleys which are being rapidly settled and which will in time support a dense population, are now and always will be directly tributary to Montesano, for this reason: between them the hills are high and the country broken, consequently road building is difficult and the roads that might be built will never be good enough to sustain other towns near here. All the best roads and the ones which will be always most traveled naturally and unavoidably gravitate to Montesano.

The Wynooche valley, extending in a northerly direction, contains some of the finest agricultural lands on the coast. The valley varies in width from one-half to one and one-half miles, and reaches as far north as the Olympic mountains. As an illustration of the fertility of the soil: On the James Wilson place, two miles northwest of Montesano, ten acres were cleared of the brush and timber, which was burned. Without being plowed the seed was sown and dragged in with brush, the result being the astonishing yield of sixty bushels of wheat per acre. In this valley the settlement is comparatively thin up to twenty miles from Montesano, where it ceases entirely, the land beyond that limit being unsurveyed.

Next east of the Wynooche is the Satsop, which, though not so extensive, contains soil which is remarkably rich. For ten miles from Montesano it is fairly well settled, the land being mostly held in large bodies. The owners, however, evince a disposition to cut up their land into smaller tracts and sell at very reasonable prices. The writer of this was offered a very desirable quarter section, mostly bottom land, in the neighborhood of [illegible], ten miles from Montesano, at the very reasonable price of $1600.

It is the Chehalis valley, however, of which the people of Montesano are especially proud. Rivaling in extent and even surpassing in fertility the famous Willamette, the Chehalis is without a peer in Washington. Not only is the soil remarkably fertile, but constant cropping seems to show no noticeable effect in decreasing the amount of produce raised. From a field of thirty-five acres which had been in meadow steadily without having been once plowed or reseeded, Mr. C. N. Byles, of Montesano last season cut an average of three tons of hay to the acre. In the Chehalis as in the Satsop valley, but little government land is left, but as the land is mostly held in large tracts and the owners are pretty generally cutting them up and offering them for sale in small sections, no trouble is found in securing farms on very reasonable terms.

In addition to the above valleys, a large part of the valley of North river, an extensive stream which runs within six miles of Montesano on its way to Shoalwater bay, is tributary to Montesano. This valley is as yet comparatively thinly settled but is fast improving and settling up. During the last year a number of school houses were erected and roads built, the cost of one to Montesano being liberally contributed to by the citizens of that place.

A use to which it is expected to put the waters of the Wynooche, Satsop and Chehalis, soon, in a more extensive way than has ever been done heretofore, is to float the timber growing within convenient hauling distance of them, to the mills at Montesano. Throughout Chehalis county are extensive tracts of the finest timber lands to be found in the Northwest, a large percentage of them being tributary to Montesano. Of these timbered tracts, the average cut of the better claims is from six to ten million feet to the quarter section, while as high as from 12,000,000 to 14,000,000 feet have been cut, figures which seem marvelous it is true, but which are so common in this section as to excite no comment. While the best of the timber claims have been taken, some good ones may still be had within convenient distance from water or the route of one of the several railroads soon to be constructed. Throughout the county are also several immense tracts of the finest [illegible] timber and agricultural lands as yet unsurveyed. One of the causes which has retarded the growth of Montesano and Chehalis county, has been their inaccessibility, the only means of reaching them being by stage from Olympia and Centralia, and by steamer from Portland and San Francisco. This, however, will not long be the case. [illegible]

[illegible]

The proposition of the Port Townsend [illegible] to make Montesano the terminus of a road, [illegible] for twenty acres river front, the right of way, depot facilities with other city lots and $25,000 invested in the stock of the company, is now being considered and will doubtless be accepted.

The line of the Port Townsend Southern, it is believed, will run down the Satsop valley within six miles of Montesano, the understanding being that a branch will be extended to that place.

Work is being rapidly pushed on the line of the Tacoma, Olympia and Gray's Harbor railroad to the vicinity of Centralia. If, as is supposed, this is the western end of the transcontinental line which will make its terminus on Gray's harbor, the future of Montesano will certainly be bright.

At present the only way to reach Montesano is by steamer from Portland, once a week and by stage each day from Centralia and Olympia. Of these routes the quickest and most satisfactory is the Williams stage line from Olympia. Leaving Olympia at 8 o'clock in the morning by steamer, after a fifteen mile ride up an arm of the Sound, along which the scenery is delightful, connections are made at Kamilche, with a train on the Puget sound and Gray's Harbor railway which carries the passengers to Summit, its present terminus. From Summit to Montesano, twenty miles, the conveyances used are four horse thoroughbrace stages, the ride in which proves very enjoyable.

BROWNSVILLE NOTES.

BROWNSVILLE, Or., March 26.

J. M. Moyer is in Portland, spending a few days.

J. F. Venner, of Portland, is visiting relatives here.

F. M. Jack is confined to his home by a severe attack of rheumatism.

B. N. Thomeson, wife and infant son arrived from San Francisco last Friday.

Fed. Coshow has gone on a business trip to Butte City, Mont., for the B. W. M. Co.

Many gardens are planted, and in some the peas are four inches high and growing finely.

Thomas Kay and family have departed for the East on a visit, to be gone several weeks.

D. M. Walter took W. Blanchard back to the McKenzie mines last week with more supplies.

Steven Goble, who lost part of his fingers and thumb a few weeks ago, is having a serious time, but is improving.

C. E. Standard has resigned the position of postmaster so long held by him, and George A. Dysen has been appointed in his stead.

R. A. Sanders's horse ran away on Sunday last, throwing him off just before crossing the bridge, and came near colliding with Dr. Starr's buggy. No serious damage was done.

Last Friday Mrs. Mary Zeaner and her two children arrived home from San Francisco. Mr. Z. will be home in two weeks. He is getting along nicely, but his neck is not quite healed yet.

The affairs of the narrow gauge railway are soon to be wound up, and we hope to see this road fall into some good company's hands, who will change it to a standard gauge and put it in first-class condition.

Dr. Tucker and family are here from McMinnville visiting Rev. Mr. Sperry. The doctor has been sick in bed ever since his arrival, but is improving. Mrs. Sperry is also sick with lung fever, but is improving now.

On the eve of the 9th inst., a school meeting was held, and by almost a unanimous vote it was decided to build a new school house, costing $4000, to be located in the gap between Mr. J. M. Moyer's and Mr. W. Cochran's land, just above Main street, in the western part of town.

Many oak logs are being cut near this city and hauled to the mill here, to be made into lumber for the Portland market. Owing to dry weather this spring no logs have been floated down the Calipooia to either the saw mills here or in Albany, and the logging crew of the Albany company broke camp up the creek last Sunday morning, and went home without getting any logs out this year.

The all-absorbing topic here the past week has been the removal of the woolen mills to Albany. The necessary $25,000 bonus has been subscribed in Albany, and all that remains now is to arrange matters in regard to the water power from Mr. Crawford, who is now absent in California, but expected home daily. Should the woolen mills be moved from this city it will be a serious loss to us all; but there is strong talk of a home company taking hold, buying them and keeping them here. A new project is also on foot here to enlarge the present tannery and put in a boot and shoe manufactory and go into business on quite an extensive scale by using home capital. These two plans are steps in the right direction, and it is in our power to carry out both enterprises if citizens will only take hold in real earnest.

YAMHILL COUNTY NOTES.

LAFAYETTE, Or., March 26.

Lafayette is now without a tin shop.

Mr. Harrington, of Missouri, has located here.

Rev. G. C. Poling's new house is about completed.

R. P. Nugerman has removed his family to McMinnville.

The Oregon Presbytery will meet at this place on the 9th of April.

Graham Glass, of the McMinnville Reporter, was in the city last week.

Miss Judd, of Newberg, has been stopping at this place the past week.

Rev. Dick, of Salem, has purchased property and has moved his family here.

Four families from the East are now on the road to this place, and all will buy property here.

Rev. Travis, Presbyterian minister, will soon bring his family from the East and locate here.

Governor Pennoyer, George McBride and E. B. McElroy, will visit this place on the 4th of April.

There is talk of putting on a morning and evening express on the narrow gauge between this place and Portland.

Mrs. Harriet Ewing, formerly of this place, died at Ellensburg, W. T., on the 21st of this month. She was taken to Ashland for burial.

Work will be begun soon on the Evangelical college. It is intended to fix the building up in good shape. The college will be in running order by fall.

No vacant houses in town to rent. What will families do that come here this fall to educate their children? Some one should build a few cottages to rent.

Lafayette people think they stand a good chance to have the Reform school located here. Amos Cook offers his place for sale. That would be a good location.

Mr. Ross, of Silverton, while working on the railroad bridge at this place got his foot caught under a bent, smashing it. A portion of the foot will have to be amputated.

A Newberg correspondent speaks of a railroad from Lafayette to McMinnville. What's the matter with the West side road cutting off at Sheridan and running through this place and over the narrow gauge road-bed to Portland.

A Forcible Objection.

From America.

Miss Beacon (of Boston)—"You Western girls are dreadfully slangy. Do you know I heard a Chicago girl say the other day that she would get there with both feet."

Miss Dearborn—"Yes, we are sometimes given to that sort of thing. Is it true that Boston girls are just as devoid of beauty as they are said to be?"

Miss Beacon—"We may not be handsome, but in the matter of culture we arrive at our destination with both of our pedal extremities."

I am still a democrat, attached to the interests and traditions of my party, but I do not believe that the disruption of the solid south would be of detriment to the democratic party. On the contrary it is my clear conviction that it is a solid democratic south that makes a solid republican North, and that for any loss of votes in the south the democratic party would be more than indemnified by an accession of votes and power in the North.

[illegible] Cough

Is dangerous as well as troublesome. It renders the patient liable to the rupture of a blood vessel or to other serious injury of throat and lungs. To allay bronchial irritation and give immediate relief, the best medicine is Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

"I was recently troubled with a dry cough which [illegible] caused by an irritation in the throat. My physician prescribed for me, but no relief was obtained. A little over a week ago my attention being called to Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, I concluded to try it, and purchased a bottle. After taking this medicine only one day, I could see a change for the better, and, by the time I had used it a week, my cough had entirely disappeared."—H. W. Denny, Franklin square, Worcester, Mass.

WEDNESDAY, March [illegible]

Merchandise received [illegible] soon to arrive by rail: 1 car mowers, 3 cars machinery, 1 car buggies, [illegible] pkgs wagon material, [illegible] pkgs hardware, 30 pkgs [illegible] bbls [illegible] pkgs [illegible] woodenware [illegible] dry goods [illegible] boots and shoes, [illegible] hats and caps, [illegible] pkgs tobacco, [illegible] cigars, [illegible] car chain cable, 1 car slate, 1 car hams, bacon, etc.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past twenty-four hours: 300 cks wheat, [illegible] bbls flour, [illegible] oats, [illegible] lbs hides, [illegible] pkgs butter, [illegible] bxs eggs, [illegible] pkgs green fruit, 44 pkgs dried fruit.

WHEAT—The market is dull and weak. Receipts for the week [illegible] from the Valley and [illegible] from Eastern Oregon. Says the San Francisco [illegible]: "Advices from England regarding the wheat situation report that a much larger percentage of this year's crop of English wheat has been delivered than was expected, but the quantity is much less than it appears owing to its light natural weight and defective flour-producing qualities. About 26,000,000 bushels of the crop have been sold, leaving about [illegible] 000 000 bushels [illegible] to come forward, against 70 000 000 bushels at this time last year. This year's wheat, however, is at least 10 per cent less than [illegible] [illegible] the average weight per bushel in [illegible] being [illegible] pounds, and this year perhaps below 60 pounds. From this it [will] be seen that [illegible] 8 000 000 bushels more of grain wheat will be required before next September than in the corresponding period last year. The same is true in a modified degree of France, and in this fact lies the strength of the present position, for we have only Russia practically to look to to supply the increased wants. The Atlantic ports of America are out of our reach. Australia has little or nothing to spare, the two colonies of South Australia and Victoria having a surplus of about 2[illegible] 000 tons, against 4[illegible] 000 tons last year. Most of the present year's surplus will be required for the other colonies and for the Cape. India and Argentine will also have less to spare than last year. The large stocks at Odessa and in the French ports are, however, the stumbling block to any immediate improvement."

The following is a statement of wheat deliveries by English farmers, imports into the United Kingdom and quantities on passage for the week ended as below, together with the corresponding period in 1888:

FLOUR—Receipts for the past six days have been [illegible] bbls [illegible] bbls came from the valley, and 1920 bbls from Eastern Oregon. The market [is] steady and quite firm, and although always in sympathy with the wheat market, [illegible] in the latter staple has failed to affect it much. [illegible] We quote standards $4 [illegible], other brands $[illegible].

OATS—Receipts for the past week [illegible] considerably [illegible] than they were a week [ago]. The market is [illegible] and heavy [illegible] prices [illegible] slow and a [illegible] few [illegible]

MILLSTUFF—The receipts [illegible] have been [illegible] mill stuff [illegible] for higher prices [illegible] being light [illegible] market [illegible] the weakness [illegible] wheat and flour. We quote Bran $16, shorts $[illegible], chop $18@20, ground barley $2[illegible]@[illegible] per ton.

ONIONS—The market is an improving one and prices rule stronger. The demand is increasing and trading is quite active. We quote 90@$1.

VEGETABLES—The market is fairly active, the demand being good for all kinds. New spring radishes and onions continue to arrive in quantities. We quote Oregon radishes 25c per dozen bunches, Oregon lettuce 15c per dozen, [illegible] young carrots 10 per dozen bunches, California cabbage 1¾@2c, turnips old 50c a sack, carrots old 50c a sack.

POTATOES—Receipts for the week 2502 sks. The market is heavily overstocked and the export demand has been light, making together a very weak market. We quote 30@35c per sack and weak.

GREEN FRUITS—Receipts for the past six days have been 1550 boxes. The market is active with a brisk demand. Apples continue scarce and are eagerly looked for. There has been another advance in them. We quote apples $1 25@1 50, with $1 75 paid for choice, per box; bananas $3 50@4 50 a bunch; oranges, Navels $4 50@4 [illegible] per box, Riversides $3@3 25, and Los Angeles, $2 25; lemons $5 50.

BUTTER—The market is firm, but prices have not advanced since our last report. The receipts for the past week have been 53 pkgs. California butter continues to come in large quantities, and still continues to be the cause of the low prices. Quote fancy creamery and choice dairy 25c, good to fair 1[illegible]@20c, common 12½@15c.

POULTRY—The market is not heavily stocked just at present; in fact ducks and geese are very scarce. Chickens too are not plentiful. The receipts have been very light for the past six days. We quote chickens $6 50 firm; turkeys [illegible] 18c per pound; ducks, $12@14; geese $10@12.

EGGS—The market is not so strong as it was a week ago, and is in a very shaky condition at present. Should the receipts of the next few days equal those of Tuesday there would be a slump. Receipts for the past week have been 1112 cases, greater even than those of the week previous. We quote 14@15c.

HOPS—The receipts are nothing, no hops coming in at present. We quote for a [illegible] as follows: Choice 1[illegible]@ [illegible], medium 10@1[illegible].

WOOL—Receipts for the past seven days have been 45,030 lbs. The market is dull, [illegible] no demand. Reports from the Eastern [illegible] that to make sales [illegible] must [illegible] We quote prices for the [illegible] market [illegible] which is scarce, choice [illegible] of which there is none worth [illegible]

HIDES—Receipts for the past week [illegible] 5770 pounds. The market is weak [illegible] stocked and [illegible] [illegible] stocks [illegible] decidedly [illegible] We quote dry hides selected prime [illegible] over 56 pounds [illegible] under [illegible] pounds [illegible] pelts, short wool [illegible] shearlings [illegible] choice 30@35c.

HAY—The market is overloaded. Receipts for the week 20 tons. Baled brings $10@15 per ton, loose $13@14.

DRIED FRUITS—Receipts for the week have been 850 pkgs, a great falling off. The market is well in hand. Oregon [illegible] is being more freely at the reduced rates and dealers are crowding Oregon [illegible] to the exclusion of imported [illegible] dried apples quarters [illegible] Plummer dried [illegible] Oregon [illegible] peaches [illegible] dried [illegible] sun dried [illegible] peaches [illegible] raisins $1 50@[illegible] Smyrna figs 14@15c, California figs 8c per pound.

LONDON GRAIN LETTER.

The London correspondent of the Northwestern Miller, writing under date of March 1, says:

Cold, wintry weather continues, and the consumptive demand for wheat must be fully up to the average. The trade does not develop very fast. The tendency is certainly toward an improvement, but buyers are by no means numerous. This week about 6d advance was realized for some cargoes afloat, but parcels arrived did not sell well at any improvement. The important feature however is the growing firmness in the country markets, where the offers may now be expected to be falling off. The mail advices received this week from South Australia and Victoria and Argentine confirm the previous impression that the crops have proved an utter failure, and that there will be no [surplus] for export for Europe this year. From New Zealand however the reports are more favorable, and a surplus of about [illegible] 000 bushels is expected against 2,500,000 bushels last year. As I led you to expect, stocks in this country have been dwindling fast, and the [retu]rns of March 1 show so far a decrease of [illegible] per cent since January 1. The exact returns are as follows:

	March 1, Qrs	Jan 1, Qrs	Feb 1 [illegible]
London	1 800 000	[illegible],000	[illegible]
Liverpool	[illegible],004 000	[illegible] 000	[illegible]
Fleetwood	406,000	[illegible] 0	[illegible]
Bristol	[illegible]	1 016,000	[illegible]
Gloucester	65 000	4[illegible] 000	[illegible]
Total	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

This decrease of about 33 per cent since [January] 1 means that the present [illegible] of wheat and flour in first hands is about 14 000 000 bushels against 20,000 000 bushels on January 1 and 16 000 000 bushels on March 1 last year. Of flour stocks at three chief points are as follows in sacks of 280 pounds:

	Mar b 1	Jan 1
London	90 000	[illegible] 000
Liverpool	91 0[illegible]	10 110
Bristol	[illegible] 000	15 000
Total	[illegible]	[illegible]

There seems but little doubt that by June 1 the [illegible] for the United Kingdom will be reduced [illegible] 1 000 000 bushels [illegible] bushels now, and that stock in first hands will by that time be reduced to perhaps 10 000 000 bushels. Under these circumstances improving prices appear inevitable, although the extent of the rise will of course depend to an extent upon the outlook for the next crop in the principal countries. [illegible] has been issued by the Central [Def]ence Association which defended the millers from the claims of the Grain M[illegible] Company [illegible] the patent for the [illegible] of the go[illegible]. This is a financial record of the whole affair and shows that while the [illegible] expenses, the Defence Association received in subscriptions and donations $2[illegible] nearly the whole of which was [illegible] the costs of the litigation [illegible] Seth Taylor the great London miller [illegible] Pete Mumford another London miller $[illegible] and many others over $[illegible]. The [illegible] of the affair seems to be that where patent [illegible] supposed to prey upon British millers the money is forthcoming to defend their interests when they are really attacked. A new [illegible] Mr [illegible] Higginbottom's patent is causing some stir just now, being claimed to be a great improvement on all previous middlings purifier[s] [illegible] machine [illegible] for separations. Another feature of British [milling] is that the rotary sieve movement is becoming universal for scalping the breaks, and [illegible] cases for dressing flour, of which fact American millers ought to take due note.

THE WOOL MARKET.

The [Boston] [illegible] of recent date has the following on the situation of the wool market:

The second week of March has proved one of the most quiet ones in the wool trade since the opening of the year. [illegible] the exceedingly light [illegible] domestic fleece wools offering serve to sustain the same basis of values which has existed for the past two weeks. On a quiet market, and especially at this season, there are always some parties who are anxious to clear up small lots and close accounts preparatory to the coming of the new clip, and who occasionally are willing to grant concessions, however no one will slaughter. In order to sell for the prospect of being able to buy new wool at prices that will replace stocks on hand are not promising. Quite an amount of inquiry has been noted the past week from manufacturers, especially on Friday and Saturday, but it was mostly from parties who wished to buy under the market and who did not meet the views of the holders on any large lines. Thus, from week to week the [illegible] is doing in Boston a business of a retail nature, consumers purchasing only to piece out or during sample bags to test the market [illegible] in domestic reaching, but 1 040,000 [illegible] last reported. Metaphorically speaking, we are between hay and grass. The general feeling among the trade is that prices will go no lower, but will hold steady until new wool makes its appearance. From Liverpool reports are as follows: Super Irish hoggs can be got at 10½d per pound. The choicest Shropshire hoggs have been sold at 1[illegible]d per pound, wethers of same class 11d [illegible] Turkey mohair is quiet. Carpet wools [illegible] and stocks are remarkably small for this season of the year. For unwashed Persian [illegible] has been paid, but the demand has now [illegible] at the figure named 100 000 pounds can be bought. Of unwashed colored Persian 200 000 pounds can be had at [illegible]d per pound. Scotch wool is exceedingly scarce; of slightly dipped white High and 100 000 pounds have been sold at 5½d. Bokhara wool is now abundant: 500 000 pounds can be bought at [illegible]d for white and colored, [illegible] per cent of the former. No change in [illegible] Dark gray Bokhara can be got at 4d per pound.

The Merchandise Market.

The weather during the week has been very fine and crop prospects continue to be flattering. About the only event of importance in the local [jobbing] market was the advance of sugars [illegible]c all [illegible].

THE LOCAL MARKET.

PICKLES—Weaker. Quote $a $1 [illegible] $1 10.

[illegible]—The market is a little unsteady [illegible] ordinary brands [illegible] per gallon.

[BEANS]—The market is firm and shows no [illegible] small whites $[illegible] 0, pink [illegible] Lima $[illegible]@[illegible], limas $4 [illegible] per cental.

[SALT]—The market is [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] contr[illegible] [illegible] salt [illegible] Liverpool $20 $[illegible] [illegible] stock salt $10 [illegible]@11 0 per ton.

RICE—[illegible] unchanged. The market [illegible] same quotations as last week: China No [illegible] $4 50, Islands $5 25, Carolina $[illegible].

COFFEE—The market is steady and displays no new feature of interest except great firmness. Quote Arbuckle's roasted [illegible], Java [illegible], Costa Rica [illegible], [illegible] Salvador 1[illegible]c.

SUGARS—On Saturday last all grades of white advanced [illegible] and yellow [illegible]c and to-day [illegible]c. The market is strong. Quote Golden C [illegible]c, extra C [illegible], dry granulated [illegible], cube crushed and powdered 8[illegible]c.

CANNED GOODS—We quote Table fruits 2½s [illegible] $[illegible]@[illegible]; Bartlett pears $[illegible], plums $1 7[illegible], strawberries $[illegible] 0, raspberries $2 50, blackberries $2, cherries $[illegible]@2 50, assorted $[illegible], assorted 8s $3 00 per dozen. Pie fruit 2½s peaches $1 50@1 30, plums $1 2[illegible], blackberries $1 50, assorted $1 [illegible]@1 30, assorted 8s $3 7[illegible]. Tomatoes 2½s $1 15, firm 8s $3 2[illegible]. Sugar peas $1 20@1 30, string beans $1@1 25.

PROVISIONS—The market has improved somewhat. Eastern meats are somewhat firmer than for some time, but show no advance in prices. We quote Oregon meats, hams 12½@13c, breakfast bacon 15c, sides 10½@11c, shoulders 9¼@10c, lard 10½@11c. Eastern hams 12@13c, breakfast bacon 13c, lard 9½@10½c.

CORDAGE—The market is very strong and shows an advance. We quote Manila rope [illegible] in circ and upwards, 1[illegible]c; 1¼ to 1½ in circ 16½c; 12 thread ⅜ diameter 17c; 6 and 9 thread ¼ and 5-16 diameter 1[illegible]c. Manila bale rope in coils or on reels, 15c. Jute yarn, tarred 1[illegible]c.

THE MEAT MARKET.

The meat market is firm. Young spring lambs are beginning to come in, and commanded a ready sale. Prices on both live and dressed meats show no advance from last week's report. Receipts for the week have been 2[illegible]1 head cattle, 1415 sheep, 91 hogs. Quote:

Beef—Live 4c, dressed [illegible]
Mutton—Live [illegible], dressed 8c.

Rheumatism and Neuralgia

These twin diseases cause untold suffering. Doctors admit that they are difficult to cure—so do their patients. Paine's Celery Compound has permanently cured the worst cases of rheumatism and neuralgia—so say those who have used it.

"Having been troubled with rheumatism at the knee and foot for five years, I was almost unable to get around, and was very often confined to my bed for weeks at a time. I used one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound and was perfectly cured. I can now jump around as lively as a boy." FRANK CARROLL, Eureka, Nevada.

"Paine's Celery Compound has been a God-send to me. For the past two years I have suffered with neuralgia of the heart, doctor after doctor failing to [illegible] I have now taken [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] 50 you." CHAS H LEWIS, Central Village, Ct.

Paine's Celery Compound

I have been greatly afflicted with acute rheumatism and could find no relief until I used Paine's Celery Compound. After using six bottles of this medicine I am now cured of rheumatic troubles.

SAMUEL HUTCHINSON, So Cornish, N H

Effects Lasting Cures.

Paine's Celery Compound has performed many other cures as marvelous as these—copies of letters sent to any address. Pleasant to take, does not disturb, but aids digestion, and entirely vegetable; a child can take it. What's the use of suffering longer with rheumatism or neuralgia?

BABIES Living upon Lactated Food are Healthy, Happy, Hearty. It is Unequaled.

ACCORDING TO A PARAGRAPH in the American Cultivator of Boston, Consumption is gradually decreasing in New England. This is a gratifying fact, and much of the credit of this condition of things is due to the extraordinary popularity in the past 50 years in New England of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. To this wonderful remedy more than all others combined is due the credit of decreasing the ravages of Consumption.

JULIUS BOYDEN,

No 574 N Main St Providence R I Was a Soldier, and I was discharged from the U S Army as an incurable Consumptive. His discharge reads "Advanced stage of Consumption of the Lungs." He writes:

"In September I went to see Dr Schenck, and soon after began to use his Medicines. In the following April I was entirely well and went to work. From that time to this I have not spent one dollar for doctors or medicine."

A MATTER OF CHOICE.

Dana, of the New York Sun, was asked whether port wine did not bring on the gout. He replied that he thought it did, but that the man who would not prefer to suffer a few twinges of the gout rather than give up his port wine wasn't a man after his heart.

Many things like this are a matter of choice and we really believe that we are justified in saying that those who will not, in the face of the testimony which we can offer, try ATHLOPHOROS when they have Neuralgia or Rheumatism really choose to keep their rheumatism rather than alter their own [illegible]

The Clackamas County Desperado Killed Near Fairview, Tuesday Night.

He Refuses to Surrender to an Armed Posse—Opens Fire—Many Shots Exchanged—Particulars of the Tragedy

Several paragraphs have appeared in these columns of late in regard to a horse thief who has been plying his vocation in Clackamas county for over two weeks. The last heard from him up to yesterday was the account of his shooting a Mr. West and his son near Damascus and making his escape.

A posse started out at once on the fellow's trail and finally tracked him to a grove of timber near Fairview on the O. R. & N. Co.'s road, fifteen miles from this city, where they shot and killed him about midnight Tuesday.

Sheriff Kelly received a dispatch from N. M. Moody, deputy sheriff of Clackamas county, Tuesday morning, asking him to send out bloodhounds as the horse thief was cornered in timber. There were no hounds to send as they had been poisoned.

Yesterday morning Sheriff Kelly received a dispatch from Deputy Moody informing him that the horsethief had been killed at Fairview about midnight and that the posse would pass through Portland with the body during the day.

Men who came in on the [illegible] reported that the body was on the platform at Fairview and that the conductor on being told that it was a horsethief who had been accidentally killed refused to take it on board the train.

As the man was killed in Multnomah county it was naturally supposed that the body would be turned over to Coroner Dillon, but nothing could be learned concerning the disposition of the remains and none of the party came to this city.

[illegible] THE OREGONIAN'S correspondent [illegible] furnished the information that the body was there, having been brought from Fairview in a hack. He states that a posse had been out hunting for [illegible] last Thursday. They came across him and exchanged shots with him Thursday evening near Cougar mountain, which is in Sandy precinct, but the fellow got away. In the skirmish [illegible] lost their horses.

The fugitive made his way to the vicinity of Fairview where he hid in a grove. He had a keg of syrup which he stole from Mr. [illegible] and [illegible] some chickens from Mr. Roper near his hiding Monday night.

The pursuers tracked him to his lair and men were stationed at various points to prevent his escape. A little before midnight he attempted to get away, but ran into an ambushed party consisting of [illegible] Mars, Mr. Hunter and son and Mr. Bering.

There are several conflicting accounts as to who fired the first shot and how many shots were fired, but it is probable that the fugitive fired at his pursuers and they probably returned the fire. After the first shot was fired he ran over 100 yards and was brought down by a shot from a Winchester which broke his leg. He fell on his face, then rolled over and fired three shots in the air, said good by John and died.

During the affray about twenty-five shots were fired, several of which hit the fugitive. Three buckshot struck him near the heart and one in the chin and there were several other wounds beside the one which brought him down.

The killed man is not known to any one who has seen him so far and there was nothing on his person to give any clue to his identity. He was about 5 feet 9 inches in hight, square built, with thick nose, receding forehead and hair close trimmed. He had two revolvers and a large number of cartridges on him when shot.

There is no doubt in regard to his being the same person who stole Mr. F. M. Rinearson's horses on the 10th inst. and who has committed various depredations since. It is supposed that he is an escaped or ex-convict, and from his actions it seems plain that he must have been a little off color mentally, for no sane person would have conducted himself as this fellow did. He was a dangerous man and it is well that a quietus was given him.

An inquest will be held at Oregon City, at which something may transpire to identify the remains.

TOO MUCH SPIRITUALISM

Jesse Farrar Takes It in Too Large Doses—He Becomes a Raving Maniac.

At 7:30 o'clock last evening Officer Richard Collins telephoned to the police station saying that Officer Gibson and himself had a crazy man cornered in a house on the northeast corner of Third and Clay streets.

Officers Farrell and Kerrigan and an inquisitive reporter immediately took a Third street car for the scene. On arriving there they found several hundred people standing in front of No. 31 Third street. Ascending the stairs leading to the second floor, officers Collins and Gibson were found in a small bedroom holding a nude young man on a bed. The four officers, two other men and the reporter, after exerting their utmost strength for about three-quarters of an hour, succeeded in securing the hands of the man, who proved to be a maniac partially dressed. A hack was called and the unfortunate man conveyed to the police station, where he will probably be examined to-day.

The house in which the insane person was found is occupied by a Mrs. M. Wheeler, who professes to be a spiritualist doctor. The neighbors say that the house has been very disorderly for some time past, especially after nightfall. It is alleged that the people who occupy the house sleep in the day time and make night hideous by their spiritualistic meetings until late hours in the morning.

[illegible] neighborhood [illegible] 314 Third street [illegible] o'clock yesterday morning they were interrupted in their slumbers by the insane ravings of the man who was taken out last evening. The disturbance continued at intervals from that time until at a late hour in the morning, when quiet again reigned supreme.

At [illegible] o'clock last evening loud screams were heard issuing from the house and a large crowd gathered.

The attention of Officers Collins and Gibson was called to the matter and they entered the house. On trying the door of the room from which the noise came they found it locked. The door was [illegible] broken down and the officers rushed in, but were met by the insane individual, who cried in a loud voice, "God has given me strength to [illegible] my enemies." He also showed fight, but was finally secured and assistance summoned.

Mrs. Wheeler has been out of town for several days and the insane man, who it appears was a roomer in the house, has had charge of it.

From letters and papers found in the room it appears that the unfortunate young man's name is Jesse Farrar, who at some time has lived at Tacoma. Taking all the circumstances into consideration, it seems that Farrar's insanity was partially, if not wholly, due to his belief in spiritualism and the severe mental strain to which he was subjected.

NOBODY'S CLAIM.

Ben and Idalene Cotton at New Park Theater Last Night

The Ben and Idalene Cotton Company made their first appearance before a Portland audience last evening in a border drama familiar to the [illegible] has for many years entitled "Nobody's Claim." The play is almost identical in its general features with the usual mining camp drama, and resembles M'liss, though not possessing a tithe of the latter's dramatic interest. It is rather sketchy in [illegible] and inconsistent in many of its situations, yet it furnishes a vehicle for the display of the [illegible] talents of Ben Cotton and Idalene.

In the role of Sam [illegible], a lazy coon, Ben Cotton is thoroughly at home, being an old minstrel performer and regarded as one of the best. His delineation [illegible] articles in dialect and action [illegible]

Miss Idalene [illegible] the profession and [illegible] in the role of [illegible] was fairly good. Her art, however, is still crude and needs many finishing touches. Her medleys and dance in the second act showed merit, which under favorable conditions ought to develop into good results.

Mr. Chas. Chappelle, an old favorite of Portland, did full justice to the role of [illegible], though he has not altogether dropped certain mannerisms which mar his otherwise good work.

The remaining characters, the [illegible] wealthy heiress, the prospector and so on, were fairly done. There was great deal of applause, especially from the gallery over the specialties and the dance in the second act.

[illegible] character unless exceptionally well done and aided by accessories and stage effects [illegible] the realism soon pall upon the public taste.

To-night the company play The Wild Flower.

THEATRICAL APPLAUSE

[illegible] March 27.

To THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

I attended the last of [illegible] Music concerts on Tuesday night and while much delighted with the general performance was much disgusted at the persistent applause. It is to be regretted that the San Francisco system of making [illegible] repeat [illegible] against their business [illegible] has been so thoroughly adopted in Portland.

Applause carried [illegible] compliment [illegible] and appreciative [illegible] the performers, but most [illegible] vulgar and dishonest in the audience. In the drama the audience is satisfied with bringing a favorite before the curtain because it has to be satisfied with such demonstration. Why, then, at concerts should not the audience be satisfied with the bow of the artist, which recognizes the compliment? When applause is carried beyond discretion and justice, compelling the artist to repeat volens [illegible] two or three times, it is simply a pawn shop principle seeking to get three dollars worth of music for one dollar's worth of money. It is the lowest type of ill breeding, vulgarity and theft and in no way complimentary to the artist.

The applause on this occasion came mainly from the galleries, although well filled by respectable people of both sexes, who doubtless, like myself, selected that place as the best to hear music. It was led by three young dudes chiefly, whose determination would induce the belief, if such a thing were possible, that they had been hired as claqueurs for the occasion. They were far too noisy and persistent to be either gentlemen or lovers of good music, though en regle in dress. Even after the Orchestral Union had rendered three long pieces in perfect form, a part of the audience tried for a long time to force them to play again, but this time failed in their cheap John game.

There is nothing more disgraceful to a city of wealth and refinement like Portland than this vulgar thieving, pawn broking applause. If we are ever favored again with a series of concerts of such excellence as those of [illegible] Music, let the better part of the audience, by a counter demonstration, stamp out this disgusting roguery and show they are really ladies and gentlemen as well as lovers of good music. One decisive demonstration and rebuke will cure the evil. I. H.

WHITHER HAVE THEY FLOWN?

Information Wanted Regarding Missing Men—An Escaped Murderer and a Minister Who Left His Home

As perfect as the legal machinery of modern government may be, and however vigilant the officers of the law, there are always avenues of escape by which criminals elude arrest. It seems strange, too, that so many murderers, embezzlers and other desperate criminals should escape detection, yet it is a fact that a large number belonging to this class of people do get out of reach of the hands of justice, and often lead a recluse life in comparative comfort and quietude after the commission of a crime.

The police authorities in this city, as in all cities of any size, are constantly receiving information in the shape of photos and descriptions of criminals who have made their escape. These descriptive circulars come from all parts of this country, as well as from the provinces of Canada, and usually an offer of reward accompanies the document as an incentive for detectives to make every effort to capture the criminal.

Two such circulars have been received by the police authorities in this city within the past few days. One offers a heavy reward for the capture of a murderer who is missing because he is wanted, and the other asks for information regarding the whereabouts of a minister who is wanted because he is missing.

The murderer who is wanted is named Albert Edward Wilson. He is wanted because he shot and killed Miss Mary Jane Marshall in Warwick, Lambton county, Ontario, Canada, on the night of Sunday, March 10th, 1889. The following is, by Chief Constable D. Black of Arkona, Ont., is a description of the criminal:

Height five feet five inches, weight about 135 pounds, dark complexion, dark grey eyes, dark hair, slight moustache, small mole on left cheek, short neck, peculiar shaped mouth, teeth prominent, reserved and quiet in his manner, square shoulders, walks very erect, when standing knees incline in, unusually small feet. Wore on night of murder, suit of checked tweed, color yellow and brown, imitation Persian lamb cap, no overcoat, pair new overshoes. Age 23, appears young for his age. Occupation farmer.

The name of the missing minister is Rev. Charles Hardson Smith. He has been missing from his home, No. 13 Akron street, Boston Highlands, since Saturday, March 9, 1889. Cyrus Small, superintendent of the Boston police department, sends the following description of him:

He is 32 years old, five feet six and one-half inches tall, 140 pounds weight, dark complexion, black hair and moustache, medium build, broad forehead, usually wears gold eye glasses and was dressed in dark suit of clothes. He is without doubt deranged and a reward will be paid by his friends for his detention until they can reach him.

LOOKING AFTER THEIR PROPERTY.

The Oregon Real Estate Company Reorganized—Officers Elected—To Be Improved

Messrs. C. X. and E. S. Larrabee, who have been expected for some time, arrived here last Friday and accompanied by Messrs. Nelson Bennett and H. Y. Thompson, left on the night boat for Astoria and proceeded to Clatsop to view the Seaside property. They returned to Portland Saturday night and have since visited their property in McMinnville, St. Joe and Beaverton and spent two days looking over their Holladay addition purchase.

The Oregon Real Estate Company has been reorganized. Mr. Joseph Simon, director, resigned, and Mr. C. X. Larrabee was elected to fill the vacancy, and Mr. C. H. Lewis was elected a director in place of George W. Weidler. Mr. H. Y. Thompson resigned the position of president and Mr. C. X. Larrabee was elected president and C. H. Lewis vice-president. The directors of the company now are C. X. Larrabee, C. H. Lewis, H. Y. Thompson, C. B. Bellinger and C. K. Harbaugh.

It is understood that in looking over the Holladay addition a large number of streets were selected and marked for immediate improvement, and that a plan for a system of sewerage was discussed and partially adopted, and an arrangement is being made with the East Portland Water Company for laying mains to supply the addition with water. These improvements will all be under way within a few days, and a portion of the property will be put on the market forthwith. In regard to the outside property, no fine default has been decided upon as yet.

Mr. Charles X. Larrabee, who will have the general supervision of the business of the Oregon Real Estate Company, has decided to fix his headquarters here and become a citizen of Portland. He is a single man and so has not so many ties to bind him to Montana as he is likely to have to attach him to this place after he has spent a year or two, as no stranger is safe from the attractions offered here.

SHE BOSSED THE JOB WELL

What a Brave and Cool Headed Little Woman Did During a Fire to Save Her Property

Observer, writing to THE OREGONIAN yesterday, has this incident to relate:

Observing that "Messrs. Note and Comment" had something to say in your paper this morning about brave women, I was reminded of the coolness shown by a little woman at a fire in this city a few years ago. At the time the fire was first discovered she was in the house with a number of small children with no grown person near except a half deaf old man, who was doing some carpenter work in the back yard. She hurried the children to the nearest neighbors and returning quickly prepared to fight the fire with the assistance of the old man, but he not hearing easily did not comprehend what was wanted of him, hence the fire got a start. Soon an alarm was turned in by telephone from one of the mills on the bank of the river, and the fire department were quickly at work.

Meantime neighbors and passers-by had assembled and entered the house and began grabbing and tossing things out of doors promiscuously. This aroused the little woman and she made the company a brief and pointed speech, declaring that she was "going to boss that job," and that if they would follow her instructions she would take all responsibility for damages. She so clearly demonstrated that she had not lost her head that the crowd fell into line and at her command took furniture, bedding, a large case of books, with glass doors, drawers, etc., a piano and even the carpets and rugs from most of the rooms—upstairs and down—out of the building and piled them safely across the street, out of all danger. The care with which the household effects were handled was such that the damage did not amount to $10. Nothing was wet save the carpets in two of the rooms. The fire was arrested after the upper story was destroyed. The entire contents of eight rooms were removed in less than thirty minutes after the alarm was first given. When the husband arrived upon the ground, he was astonished to see the condition of affairs and felt that probably his wife had made a better job of removing the contents of the burned home than he would have done.

FIRE ON PORTLAND HEIGHTS

Colonel J. C. Shofner's Residence Has a Narrow Escape From Destruction

A few minutes past [illegible] o'clock last evening an alarm was turned in from [illegible] streets which brought the fire department to the scene in short order.

The fire, which was in the residence of Colonel J. C. Shofner on Portland Heights, was out before the arrival of the engines, but firemen armed with Babcock fire extinguishers strapped to their backs, [illegible] Their labor was lost, however, as the occupants of the house by their presence of mind had [illegible] out of the blaze, which was confined to a closet.

In this closet was stored all of Colonel Shofner's [illegible] ware, including his valuable wedding presents. It is roughly estimated that the damage to furniture and the contents of the closet will reach at least $1000. The latter is fully covered by insurance, but the furniture is not. The fire had evidently [illegible] burning a long time, for the property [illegible] on the part of the occupants of the house [illegible] The house is comparatively a new one, only having been occupied about one year. What would be done in case of a large fire on the heights is a mystery. The water supply is inadequate to battle with a good blaze, while the fire department can not ascend the hill. Fortunately, however, the dwellings are not all huddled together, for if they were they would all go at once in case of a fire. Some adequate water supply, it would seem, should be provided in the event of a fire in that part of the city.

BEFORE THE TRIBUNALS.

Important Suit Transferred to the United States Circuit Court

Case Was Remanded—Letters of Administration—Income Insufficient—New Citizens—Wages and Board—An Appealed Suit—Blotter

The suit of the board of school land commissioners against Mahala Wilson and Philip Grigsby, a suit in equity, to foreclose a mortgage, has been transferred from the circuit court of Linn county to the United States circuit court here. The facts in the case are as follows: On the 26th of September, 1887, the school fund loaned to Mahala Wilson $1500 for one year, who gave a note secured by mortgage on 102 acres and a fraction of land situated in Linn county. The note became due and Philip Grigsby became security and for the note borrowing in addition $1400, securing the loan by two mortgages on [illegible] acres of land near the Wilson property.

Messrs. Governor Pennoyer, G. W. Webb and G. W. McBride, afterward comprising the board, secured an order from the state circuit court for Linn county, authorizing them to sell the Wilson land on an execution, to satisfy the claim of the school fund, the loan not having been repaid. The order was made July 1, 1878, and the board bought it in for $1500 on September 29, 1878. An execution sale was ordered for the sale of the Grigsby land on November 1, 1878, and the same board bought it in for $ [illegible]. After the expiration of the time allowed the former owners to redeem the property, no such step having been taken, the sheriff of Linn county gave the board a deed to the land. The board then transferred their land to Messrs. Joseph and J. W. Myers, who were given deeds to the land.

On the 28th of April, 1883, Grigsby sold his land to James Swift of California, who brought suit immediately in the United States circuit court of Oregon, to be awarded the possession of the land. Plaintiff claims that there is now due from Mahala Wilson the $1500 on the original loan and interest, amounting in all to $2106.25, all of which is unpaid. They claim there is due from Grigsby the original sum of $1400, with interest and attorney's fees, amounting in all to $ [illegible]. They further claim that they should be reimbursed to the extent of $5000 for improvements made while they have been in possession of the land. The plaintiffs pray for an order from the court enjoining James Swift from proceeding further till these claims are satisfied.

THE CASE REMANDED

United States District Attorney McArthur is back from Corvallis and succeeded in having the case of Samuel Case against J. H. Loftus remanded from the circuit court of Benton county to the United States court. The suit was brought against Mr. Loftus, who is foreman on the work of building the government wharf and tramway at Newport, to enjoin the construction of the wharf. District Attorney McArthur asked to have the case remanded on the ground that there was a federal question involved and this view was sustained by the court.

WANTS THE ESTATE APPRAISED

Mrs. Catharine Scott, wife of the late C. C. Scott, yesterday filed a petition in the county court asking for letters of administration upon the estate of her late husband. There being no children and Mr. Scott having left no will, Mrs. Scott is sole heir. The bulk of the estate is the one-half interest in the Gilman house. This will probably be sold after its appraisal.

TO INCREASE HIS INCOME

Van B. DeLashmutt, guardian of the estate of William H. Andrus, an insane person, yesterday filed an application in the county court for selling a portion of his ward's property. The income from the estate is not sufficient for Andrus's support, and if a portion of the estate is sold the funds can be invested to better advantage and secure a larger income.

APPEAL FROM JUSTICE MAYO'S COURT

The case of E. S. McCoy vs. Christian Jann, appealed from Justice Mayo's court in East Portland, was taken to department 1 of the state circuit court yesterday. The suit is for the recovery of $105 alledged to have been due on a unicky mixed up real estate transaction.

RENOUNCE ALLEGIANCE TO THE QUEEN

Declarations of intention of becoming citizens were yesterday filed with the clerk of the county court by William Milligan, William J. Bishop, Albert R. Ockerman and A. D. McMillan, all subjects of the queen of Great Britain and Ireland.

SUIT FOR $203.47

In department 1 of the state circuit court, Fleischner, Mayer & Co. yesterday commenced suit against H. Harris for the recovery of $203.47. The amount is claimed due for merchandise delivered at defendant's request.

SUIT FOR WAGES AND BOARD

George B. Jarvis yesterday commenced suit in Judge Shattuck's court against Ernest Kenne for the recovery of $82.50 for work performed and $61 for board, making a total of $143.50.

KROCHER VS. HUNSAKER & HALL

Ernest Krocher yesterday brought suit in Judge Shattuck's court against B. K. Hunsaker and W. H. Hall, to recover $75 for labor performed.

LICENSED TO WED

A marriage license was yesterday issued by the clerk of the county court to J. N. Lafferty and Mary E. Smith.

HIS FRIENDS ASSIST HIM

Charles F. Perkins, the man in the county jail awaiting trial on a charge of attempting a felonious assault upon a little girl, evidently is not entirely without friends. Yesterday morning after he had left the court room, whither he was taken while his attorney submitted a second demurrer to the indictment, the following brief letter was found on the table where he had been sitting:

PEARLINE
PEARLINE

From the start, the shadows have read, Pyle's Pearline is mightier than soap, muscle and washboard combined. It is the modern soap. Nowadays one cannot afford to reject a new idea because it promises "big things." These are days of "big things." Wide awake men and women are looking for them. She who refuses the aid of PEARLINE is behind the times—far behind. She might as well reject the comfort and aid of the steam car—sewing machine—telegraph—electric light, etc., because she does not believe in them. Millions appreciate Pearline, and have for years. Millions more will appreciate it—you will—why not begin at once to use it. Its prodigious popularity proves its merit—you have everything to gain, nothing to lose, therefore try it.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers are offering imitations which they claim to be Pearline, or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—they are not, and besides are dangerous. PEARLINE is never peddled, but sold by all good grocers. 136 Manufactured only by JAMES PYLE, New York.
